THE FLORIDA SENATE

2014 - 2016
Welcome to the Florida Senate. We are so pleased you have taken time to experience a part of Florida’s past, present, and future by walking the halls and chambers where citizen-legislators have gathered for generations.

The Florida Senate is comprised of 40 independently elected men and women of differing walks of life, family backgrounds, and communities of faith. These dedicated public servants share a commitment to the people of our state, the courage to boldly address the challenges of our day, and a passion for freedom and independence that has defined our nation, our state, and the institution of the Florida Senate since its inception.

Like those elected to serve our state in the Senate, you too play an important role in the legislative process and help us build the legacy we hope to leave for the next generation of Floridians. We encourage you to stay involved by contacting your local Senator with suggestions, ideas, and feedback. Together, we can build on Florida’s rich history and keep our state the best place to live, work, raise a family, and retire.

Thank you for the opportunity to serve you in the Florida Senate. I look forward to seeing you around the Capitol.

Respectfully,

Andy Gardiner
President of the Senate
When the first Senate was convened on January 7, 1839 — six years before Florida became a state — no business could be transacted because only seven of the sixteen Senators were present. There was no quorum of Senators for three of the first four days, and it was not until the fifth day of the first session that Territorial Governor Richard Keith Call addressed the Senate and the House of Representatives in joint session.

Since the beginning days, the Senate has evolved into a highly organized, smoothly functioning legislative body that meets annually to conduct the people’s business. The year-round professional staff conducts vital research and prepares for the legislative sessions.

The Florida Senate today has 40 members, each elected from a single-member district and each representing approximately 470,000 Florida citizens. Each Senator is elected for a four-year staggered term. He or she may be elected for more than one term, but may not seek reelection if he or she has served for eight consecutive years (see Article VI, Section 4, State Constitution). The Constitution of the State of Florida specifies that Senators must be at least 21 years of age, must be registered voters, must be residents of the district from which they are elected, and must have resided in Florida for two years prior to their election.

While members of the other branches of government work full time in public service, the Legislature maintains its identity as the “citizen” branch. Many Senators work in a business or profession when they are not carrying out their legislative duties. Their occupations include law, nursing, banking, business, education, agriculture, and real estate. “Once a Senator, always a Senator” is a catchy phrase of good fellowship that conveys something of the philosophy of the Senate.

The 2014-2016 Senate membership includes 27 men and 12 women. There are 25 Republicans and 14 Democrats. Currently, a vacancy exists in District 6 which will be filled in a special general election to be held April 7, 2015. The average Senator is about 54 years old, is married, and has children. Thirty-four Senators have college degrees. Thirty Senators served in the House of Representatives prior to their election to the Senate. The Senate is presided over by a President elected by the members of the Senate. Also elected is the President Pro Tempore. The President for the 2014-2016 term is Senator Andy Gardiner from Orlando. The President Pro Tempore, Senator Garrett Richter, is serving his second consecutive term in this role.

Additional information on these officers and the other members of the Senate is contained on the following pages of this handbook. The handbook also further outlines and describes the Senate, its operations, and its relationship to the House of Representatives and the other two branches of Florida government.
The Senate President is a constitutional officer who leads the Florida Senate for a two-year term. The President, who is elected by members of the Senate, manages the operations of the Senate and presides over its sessions. The President’s many duties include: selecting a Majority Leader, appointing Senators to standing Senate committees, appointing committee chairs, and appointing citizens to a variety of boards and commissions.

Vacant  District 6
At its organization session every two years, the Senate elects a Secretary of the Senate pursuant to the Constitution of the State of Florida. This non-member constitutional officer publishes the Journal and the calendar, keeps all Senate records, and authenticates each act and resolution passed by the Senate.

Other operations within the Secretary’s Office include: bill drafting, bill and amendment filing, duplication and distribution of documents, recording of actions taken by the Senate, and the performance of support services for the Senate. Special chamber computer programs, such as the vote system and Session Organizer, are designed and operated by the Secretary’s Office.

Working with the Office of Legislative Information Technology Services and the Senate Information Technology Director, the Secretary’s Office coordinates the development and maintenance of computer applications used by Senate professional staff. The Secretary’s Office maintains Senate information included on the Florida Senate’s official website and on the Legislature’s Online Sunshine website.

The Secretary often speaks to various visiting civic and student groups, and the Secretary’s Office hosts numerous mock sessions throughout each year.

Senate Sergeant at Arms

The President appoints a Sergeant at Arms who attends sessions of the Senate; maintains order under the direction of the President; executes the commands of and serves Senate process as directed by the President of the Senate and by the Senate; has charge of all property of the Senate to the extent as is delegated to the Sergeant at Arms by the President; has general charge of the security of the chamber, committee rooms, and gallery of the Senate and maintains order therein in cooperation with the Division of Capitol Police; and has general supervision of the doorkeepers and professional maintenance staff.

This is a historic time as the Senate will have two Sergeants at Arms for a year. Sergeant Donald Severance has worked in the Senate since 1976, 39 years, serving as Sergeant for 16 years. He will retire in November of 2015. To provide a time to transfer knowledge, Tim Hay was selected in November of 2014 to be the Sergeant at Arms.

Dropping the handkerchief is a ceremony unique to the Florida Legislature. No other state has anything like it. It was born out of procedural necessity and an architectural oddity of the Historic Capitol.

In the early 1920s, the halls out of the House and Senate Chambers existed at right angles to each other. Since the Constitution contemplates the two chambers are to coordinate the close of a legislative session, the sine die adjournment motion has to be received and put to the chambers at exactly the same point in time. With the chamber doors at right angles to each other, these early legislative bodies had to find a way to synchronize the time of their final adjournment.

They came up with a novel idea. The Senate and House Sergeants at Arms would walk out of their respective chambers and meet at the point of intersection of the legislative halls. There they could be seen by both presiding officers. The sergeants would each hold up a handkerchief. At the agreed upon time for adjournment, the Rules chairs of each chamber would make their sine die adjournment motions and the vote would be taken. The sergeants would then drop their handkerchiefs. When the presiding officers saw both handkerchiefs touch the floor, they would bring down their gavels sharply and declare the session at an end.

Even though the doors of our chambers have faced each other down a common corridor since 1947, the handkerchief drop, our distinctive ceremony, continues to this day. It is our special and historic custom for celebrating the end of our work and our time together while at the same time honoring those who came before us.

Written by John B. Phelps, Staff Director, Senate Rules Committee

A HISTORY OF DROPPING the Handkerchief

Senators Sergeant at Arms Donald Severance has upheld the tradition of the sine die handkerchief ceremony for the past sixteen years.

Taken in 1978, this photo depicts the first sine die ceremony in the current Capitol. House Sergeant at Arms Wayne Westmark (left), and Senate Sergeant at Arms John D. Melton drop the handkerchief to demonstrate the method of symbolizing sine die adjournment in sessions when House and Senate Chambers did not face each other.
The Senate Chamber

The Senate Chamber, also known as the “floor,” is the room on the fourth floor of the Capitol where Senators debate the merits of proposed legislation. The current chamber is the fourth used since the first session of the Senate was called to order in 1839. The first session held in this chamber occurred in 1978.

On the floor above the chamber is the gallery. Citizens may sit in the gallery to observe the Senate in session. From the gallery, attention is drawn to the rostrum where the President is presiding. Above the rostrum is the Senate seal, which was adopted in 1972.

The President occupies the “chair,” pacing the flow of legislation, deciding who will speak, and ruling on parliamentary disputes. The President may call on other Senators to preside while he or she works out the details of legislative proposals.

The portraits hanging below the gallery commemorate past Presidents of the Senate. After each President’s term, a portrait is painted and hung in this area. The portraits are arranged in chronological order with the most recent on the presiding officer’s right. Each time the newest portrait is added, the oldest is taken down and moved to the Historic Capitol, keeping 100 years of past Presidents on display in the “new” chamber.

In front of the President’s rostrum is the Secretary’s desk, which is staffed by the Secretary of the Senate. Legislative business is not properly before the Senate until it is “on the desk.” Clerks at this desk read the bills and amendments and record Senate actions. These actions are published in the Journal, the official record of Senate proceedings. A Senator who wishes to “approach the well” to make a speech speaks from one of the reading podiums at the Secretary’s desk. Session Organizer, a computer program designed to display amendments and information on bills, allows Senators the flexibility of accessing legislative information from their Tallahassee offices and in the Senate Chamber on their laptop computers.

Voting boards on each side of the chamber record a Senator’s green “yea” or red “nay” vote. The amber lights you see next to some names indicate the Senator wants a “page” to deliver a message or retrieve a file from his or her office. The voting boards also display the number of the bill or amendment being debated and other information related to the proceedings. Electronic voting was first used in the Senate in 1966, and now nearly all votes are recorded electronically.

The seating arrangement in the chamber is determined by the President. Telephones at each chamber desk provide direct communication with the Senator’s professional district staff. Only members of the Senate and designated professional staff are allowed in the chamber while the Senate is in session. Certain present and past state officials and guests invited by the President may also enter the chamber during a session.

Senators are addressed by their district number when they are recognized to speak. Custom decrees a Senator may not be addressed as a “gentleman” or “lady.” He or she is “the Senator from the fifth,” for example, but never “the gentleman or lady from the fifth.” During debate, the members are always formally addressed as “Senator,” not by their given names.

Just above the main entrance is the press gallery, where members of Florida’s press corps report Senate actions. The remainder of the gallery is open to the public at all sessions, except a portion of the gallery is usually reserved for the Senators’ families, and other sections are often temporarily reserved for visiting students.

Robotic cameras from the Florida Channel are positioned in the chamber to provide live, televised coverage of all Senate sessions. Each weekday evening during the session, The Florida Channel and Florida’s public television affiliates broadcast “Capitol Update,” a live half-hour news program explaining and analyzing each day’s most significant legislative developments. The broadcasts are funded by the Legislature, but all editorial content is determined by the group of professional journalists who produce the programs. Florida’s legislative teletcasts were used as a model for a similar system installed in 1979 in the U.S. House of Representatives. In addition, live and unedited feeds of some legislative events can be found at www.flsenate.gov and www.thefloridachannel.org.
Your Senator is interested in hearing your opinions concerning the issues on which he or she will vote. This section will provide you with guidelines on how to approach legislators and how best to express your ideas so that they will be read—or listened to—and understood.

Most people communicate with their Senator by letter (increasingly by email), but you can also try to speak directly with your Senator by telephone or even in person. No matter which method you choose, the same guidelines apply:

• Know your subject matter well and have data to back up your point of view.
• Inform yourself about the full name and address of your Senator and about the positions he or she has taken on the issues that concern you.
• Do not use form letters; instead, if you are working from a form letter, re-write the essential points in your own words.
• If you represent others from your community, formally or even informally, indicate that to the Senator.
• Be brief and to-the-point in your presentation. Attach supporting data or documents and refer to them in your cover letter.
• Be courteous.
• Be completely fair in your presentation of the facts.
• If you are interested in a specific bill, refer to that bill by its number. You can find out this information by accessing the Senate’s website at www.flsenate.gov or by calling the Division of Law Revision and Information at 1-850-488-4371. Note that Senate Bills are even-numbered and House Bills are odd-numbered.
• Always provide your address (street or email) and your telephone number so that your Senator or a staff member can contact you for further data or discussion.
• If you are going to meet personally with your Senator, prepare carefully for the meeting and be on time. If he or she asks you for more information than you have brought with you, be prompt in responding to the request.

You may build an effective relationship with your Senator on a series of issues and make considerable contributions to the process of creating public policy. Your Senator will be grateful for your participation.

You may want to keep track of certain bills as they proceed through the legislative process. To find out which committees the bills have been assigned to, access the Florida Senate’s website (www.flsenate.gov), contact your Senator’s office, or call the Division of Law Revision and Information (1-850-488-4371).

You may have an opportunity to appear before a committee that is hearing the bill by contacting the committee as soon as the bill has been referred to the committee. The committee chair controls his or her committee’s agenda and schedules the bills.

When preparing for a public hearing, keep these guidelines in mind:

• When signing up to testify on a bill, the committee may require you to present written testimony for distribution to committee members and professional staff. Written testimony should be submitted to the appropriate office at least 24 hours prior to the scheduled committee hearing. At the meeting, fill out an appearance record form.
• Generally, each committee chair follows the order of the bills listed on the agenda.
• Prepare your oral testimony in advance and be brief unless asked to elaborate.
• Be specific and to-the-point regarding the bill you are testifying on.
• Be prepared to answer questions from committee members on your testimony or on the position you have taken on each bill. If you do not know the answer to a question, just say so.

A simplified chart showing the route many bills take through the Florida Legislature. Bills may originate in either house. This bill originated in the Senate.
Florida’s Constitution, in the traditional American pattern of “separation of powers,” divides state government into three separate and independent branches. This division of powers creates a system of “checks and balances” ensuring all three branches properly perform their constitutional duties in the administration of state affairs. Tallahassee is the seat of Florida’s state government.

The Florida Constitution vests the supreme executive power of the state in the Governor and provides he or she shall ensure the laws are faithfully executed. It provides for a Lieutenant Governor to be elected in a joint candidacy with the Governor. The Lieutenant Governor works with the Governor and performs such duties pertaining to the office of the Governor as assigned by the Governor, or as otherwise provided by law. The Constitution also provides the Governor shall be assisted by an elected Cabinet consisting of an Attorney General, Chief Financial Officer, and a Commissioner of Agriculture.

The Governor, Lieutenant Governor, and members of the Cabinet are elected to four-year terms. They take office on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in January following their election in November of non-presidential election years. The Governor may succeed himself or herself in office unless he or she has served more than six years in two consecutive terms. Cabinet members may not seek reelection if, by the end of their current term, they will have served in that office for eight consecutive years.
The Judicial Branch

The Judicial Branch interprets the law and applies the Constitution. Florida’s court system consists of a series of circuit and county courts, district courts of appeal, and the state Supreme Court.

County courts preside over criminal trials of misdemeanors and some civil cases. They also have the power to issue warrants of arrest. There is one county court located in each of Florida’s 67 counties. The number of judges in each county court varies with the population and caseload of the county. County judges are elected to four-year terms.

Circuit courts are located in each of Florida’s 20 judicial circuits. Some circuits contain only one county, but most are multi-county. The circuit courts are at the top of the trial system, and they also hear limited appeals from county courts. Circuit judges are elected by the voters of the circuits to serve six-year terms.

The district courts of appeal are intermediate appellate courts that receive most of the appeals from trial courts. There are five judicial districts in Florida, with courts located in Tallahassee, Lakeland, Daytona Beach, West Palm Beach, and Miami. Appointed by the Governor to serve in each district court, these judges must be reconfirmed by the voters every six years.

The Supreme Court is at the top of Florida’s court system and is the final state court of appeal. The Supreme Court determines the constitutionality of statutes, has the authority to issue advisory opinions to the Governor, and has administrative responsibilities over all lower courts. There are seven Supreme Court justices, each appointed by the Governor and retained by a popular vote every six years.

The Legislative Branch

The Legislative Branch has the exclusive power to make laws, including Florida’s state budget.

Composition and Organization. The Constitution of the State of Florida requires that members of the Legislature be elected at the general election in November of even-numbered years. Florida’s Legislature is composed of two houses, the Senate and the House of Representatives. Each house is the sole judge of the qualifications and elections of its members and has the power to choose its own officers and establish its own rules of procedure. All legislative sessions are open to the public, except when appointments or suspensions of public officials are considered in executive session. Either house of the Legislature may initiate legislation on any subject.

The State Constitution provides the Legislature shall be apportioned into 30 to 40 senatorial districts and 80 to 120 representative districts. The 1972 Legislature established 40 Senate districts and 120 House districts. Senators serve four-year terms and representatives serve two-year terms. While a legislator may be elected for more than one term, he or she may not seek reelection if at the end of his or her current term he or she has served for eight consecutive years.
Legislative Sessions. Two weeks after each general election, the Legislature convenes for the exclusive purpose of organization and election of officers. No legislation is considered during the organization session.

Regular sessions of the Legislature begin on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in March in odd-numbered years and continue for 60 consecutive days, which may be extended by a three-fifths vote of each house. The Legislature may change its convening date in even-numbered years, but generally the date remains the same as in odd-numbered years, except once every 10 years when the Constitution requires the Legislature to reapportion the state’s voting districts. Special sessions may be called by the Governor or may be convened by joint proclamation of the President of the Senate and the Speaker of the House of Representatives. Special sessions may not exceed 20 days, unless extended by a three-fifths vote of each house. Each “call” for a special session outlines the business to be considered. The Senate may resolve itself into executive session to consider appointment to or removal from public office, even when the House of Representatives is not meeting.

Rules. During the organization session, each house adopts its rules of procedure to be followed for the next two years. The rules provide for orderly proceedings and determine how each house will conduct its business.

Committees. A committee functions to study, research, and plan solutions to issues facing Floridians. The Senate and House rules provide for standing committees, special or select committees, and subcommittees. The presiding officers name the chairs and members of all committees.

Bills are assigned to one or more committees for study. Committees may hold public hearings where committee members hear sponsoring legislators and others who are interested in the bill. The committee may vote to recommend the bill favorably; favorably with a committee substitute; unfavorably; or favorably with amendments to be considered when the bill is debated on the floor by the respective house.

When the Senate and House are unable to agree on the final content of a bill, it goes to a conference committee. This committee, composed of members of both houses, tries to resolve the differences between the Senate and House versions of a bill.

Other committees commonly used are joint committees, which are composed of members from each house, and select committees, which are usually appointed to make recommendations on special or unique problems.

Lobbying. A lobbyist is someone who tries to influence decisions made by government. Unless exempted by law or rule, any person who seeks to affect legislation must register with the Division of Legislative Information Services before he or she can begin lobbying. Each lobbyist must also state any direct business association or partnership with any current member of the Legislature. Lobbyists must make periodic reports on compensation which are randomly audited by an independent contract auditor.

Journals and Calendars. The Secretary of the Senate and the Clerk of the House each publish daily journals and calendars during the legislative session. Each journal details the proceedings on the floor, committee reports, and related actions of the previous day. Calendars serve as official notification of legislative activities, such as sessions, committee meetings, bills to be considered, schedules, deadlines, and other significant information.

Forms of Legislation. Legislative proposals may be in the form of bills, resolutions, concurrent resolutions, joint resolutions, or memorials. A bill is a proposed law, and it may be either a general bill or a local bill. A general bill would have a general impact within the state; a local bill would affect only a particular county, city, or town named in the bill. A majority vote is required to pass a bill, unless otherwise provided in the Constitution. Companion bills are often used as a timesaving device. These are identical bills introduced in both houses, which allow simultaneous committee study in each body. The appropriations bill is one of the most important bills considered by the Legislature. This bill is the state’s budget, and it specifies the amount of money available to various state agencies during the next year. The appropriations bill follows the same course as other general bills, but because it is difficult to get both houses to agree on all items in the bill, a conference committee is usually appointed to resolve the differences.

Glossary of Legislative Terms

Act – A bill passed by the Legislature.
Adjourn – To end a committee meeting or a day’s legislative sitting.
Adopt – To vote to accept.
Amendment – A proposal to change the original terms of a bill.
Bicameral – Consisting of two houses. All states have bicameral legislatures except Nebraska, which has only one house (unicameral).
Bill – A proposed law.
Budget – A bill that states how much money will be spent on government programs and services.
Calendar – A publication containing legislative activities or a list of bills awaiting action.
Chair – A legislator who presides over a committee meeting or a session.
Chamber – Also known as the “floor,” it is the room in which the Senate or the House of Representatives meets.
Clerk of the House of Representatives – The person appointed by the Speaker of the House of Representatives to assist the members of the House in the detailed processes of enacting laws and to record that history.
Committee – A group of Senators or Representatives appointed by the presiding officer to consider important issues and to report its recommendations for action by the body that originated it.
Convene – To meet in formal legislative session.
Constituent – A citizen who resides in the district of a legislator.
Debate – To argue the merits of a bill, for and against.
District – That area of the state represented by a legislator, determined on the basis of population.
Gallery – The seating area for visitors located above each chamber (on the fifth floor of the Capitol).
Governor – The chief executive of the State.
Journal – The official record of the proceedings of the Senate or the House of Representatives.
Law – The final product of the legislative process. It is the end result of the introduction of a bill, its passage by both houses, its approval by the Governor (or the overriding of his veto by the Legislature), and its recording by the Secretary of State.
Majority party – The political party having more than half of the seats in a house.
Minority party – The political party having fewer than a majority of seats in a house.
Motion – A proposal, usually oral, made to the presiding officer and relating to procedure or action before a legislative body.
Oath of Office – An oath or vow taken by a public official prior to taking up his or her official duties.
Order of Business – The defined routine of procedure in the legislative body each day. It can be deviated from only by waiver of the rules.
Passage – Favorable action on a measure before the Legislature.
President of the Senate – The presiding officer of the Senate. He or she is designated as President by the majority party in caucus and then elected by the full membership of the Senate for a term of two years.
President Pro Tempore of the Senate – Literally, president “for a time.” Elected by the Senate, he or she performs specified duties as prescribed by the Senate Rules or the Senate President.
Quorum – The number of members required for the conduct of business.
Repeal – The removal of a provision from the law.
Roll call – To determine a vote on a question by the taking of names in favor of and opposed to.
Rules – Provisions for the procedure, organization, officers, and committees of each house of the Legislature.
Secretary of the Senate – The person elected by the Senate to assist Senate officers, members, and professional staff in the detailed processes of enacting laws and to record that history.
Sergeant at Arms – The person in each house who is responsible for the security of the legislative house and the maintenance of that house’s property.
Session – The period during which the Legislature meets.
Sine die – Refers to final adjournment of a legislative session. The term is sometimes used to denote the ceremony involving the dropping of white handkerchiefs, which symbolizes the end of a regular session.
Speaker of the House of Representatives – The presiding officer of the House of Representatives. He or she is designated as Speaker by the majority party in caucus and then elected by the full membership of the House for a term of two years.
Veto – Return by the Governor to the Legislature of a bill without his or her signature; the veto message from the Governor usually explains why he or she thinks the bill should not become a law.
Vote – A decision on a question, either affirmative or negative.
Washington, D.C., is the seat of the nation’s government. The names and addresses of Florida’s representatives in the legislative branch may be found on the official websites: The United States Senate (www.senate.gov) and The United States House of Representatives (www.house.gov).

United States Senate

The Senate is composed of 100 members, two from each state, elected by the people pursuant to the 17th Amendment to the United States Constitution. A Senator must be at least 30 years of age, have been a citizen of the United States for nine years, and, when elected, be a resident of the state from which the Senator is chosen. The term of office is six years, and one-third of the total membership of the Senate is elected every second year. The terms of both Senators from a particular state are arranged so that they do not terminate at the same time. Of the two Senators from a state serving at the same time, the one who was elected first (or if both were elected at the same time, the one elected for a full term) is referred to as the “senior” Senator from that state. The other is referred to as the “junior” Senator. Senators Bill Nelson and Marco Rubio represent Florida in the U.S. Senate.

United States House of Representatives

The House of Representatives is composed of 435 members elected every two years from among the 50 states, apportioned according to their total populations. Today there is one representative for approximately every 696,345 residents, a much larger figure than the 30,000 residents the Constitution of the United States originally required for a Congressional district.

A Representative must be at least 25 years of age, have been a citizen of the United States for seven years, and, when elected, be a resident of the state in which the Representative is chosen.

In addition to the Representatives from each of the states, there is a Resident Commissioner from the Commonwealth of Puerto Rico and Delegates from the District of Columbia, American Samoa, Guam, and the Virgin Islands. The Resident Commissioner and the Delegates have many of the privileges of Representatives, with the important exception of the right to vote on matters before the House.

Under the provisions of Section 2 of the 20th Amendment to the United States Constitution, Congress must assemble at least once every year, at noon on the third day of January, unless by law it appoints a different day. A Congress lasts for two years, commencing in January of the year following the biennial election of members, and is divided into two sessions.

Unlike some other parliamentary bodies, both the Senate and the House of Representatives have equal legislative functions and powers (except that only the House of Representatives may initiate revenue bills), and the designation of one as the “upper” House and the other as the “lower” House is not appropriate.
The United States Constitution authorizes each House to determine the rules of its proceedings. Pursuant to that authority, the House of Representatives adopts its rules on the opening day of each Congress. The Senate, which considers itself a continuing body, operates under standing rules it amends from time to time.

The chief function of Congress is the making of laws. In addition, the Senate has the function of advising and consenting to treaties and to certain nominations by the President. In the matter of impeachments, the House of Representatives presents the charges – a function similar to that of a grand jury – and the Senate sits as a court to try the impeachment. Following a presidential election, both houses meet in joint session on the sixth day of January, unless by law they appoint a different day, to count the electoral votes.

Be a part of history! The Senate Page Program gives Florida students the rare opportunity to observe and participate in the legislative process.

During regular sessions of the Legislature, participating students come to Tallahassee for one week to work in the Senate Chamber, distribute materials, and deliver messages to Senators and professional staff. Each Senator may sponsor up to two pages (ages 15-18). Senators may also submit applications for alternate pages, who serve on an as-needed basis.

Sponsoring Senators give an application to the students they wish to sponsor. Senators submit completed applications by January of each year. The Office of the Senate President schedules each page for one week of service during the upcoming session. Professional dress is required.

Pages receive a minimum-wage stipend for participating in the program. Students are expected to provide their own transportation, housing, and meals while in Tallahassee.

During each week of session, pages discuss the legislative process and participate in a “mock session.” Students act as Senators, debating and voting on bills. Other educational opportunities and Capitol tours are also planned during session.

- Florida has had six Constitutions since it became a state. The first Constitution was drafted in Saint Joseph, now known as Port St. Joe. Presently, Florida is governed by the Constitution of 1968, as subsequently amended.

- Florida’s first Legislative Council, which was supposed to meet in Pensacola on June 10, 1822, did not meet until 44 days later due to hazardous and time-consuming travel.

- Tallahassee was named the state capital in 1824 by Florida’s first territorial governor, William P. Duval.

- The total land area of Florida is 54,252 square miles. The total water area is 4,308 square miles.

- In 1824, three log cabins were erected in Tallahassee to accommodate the Legislative Council. This was Florida’s first Capitol.

- In the 1890s, several efforts were made to move the state capital from Tallahassee. Choices included Jacksonville, Ocala, and St. Augustine.

- Florida’s fourth and present Capitol was officially opened on March 31, 1978, by Governor Reubin Askew.

- Construction of Florida’s present Capitol required 3,700 tons of structural steel and 2,800 tons of reinforcing steel. The Capitol contains 25,000 cubic feet of concrete, the equivalent of 16 football fields, each one-foot thick.
• Snow fell in Dade County on January 20, 1977.

• Dr. John Gorrie of Apalachicola patented the process of making ice artificially in 1851.

• The St. Johns River is one of the few rivers that flows north instead of south, and at 273 miles in length, it is Florida’s longest river.

• The Buckman Act of 1905 consolidated the state’s institutions of higher learning into three: the University of Florida at Gainesville, the Florida State College for Women at Tallahassee, and the Florida Agricultural and Mechanical College for Negroes at Tallahassee.

• Founded in 1973 by Rhea Chiles as Florida’s “embassy” in our nation’s capital, Florida House is owned by the people of the State of Florida. Florida is the only state to have such a facility. It enjoys approximately 10,000 visitors a year. Florida House serves as “home base” for tourists as well as the business community (www.floridaembassy.com).

• Florida has more than 11,000 miles of rivers, streams, and waterways.

• In 1937, Amelia Earhart took off from Miami for an around-the-world flight and was never seen again.

• The first commercial airline service between two U.S. cities was established between St. Petersburg and Tampa in 1914.

• Eight student athletes from Florida universities have won the Heisman Trophy between 1966 and 2013.

• Juan Ponce de Leon came ashore on the northeast coast of Florida sometime between April 2 and April 8, 1513. He called the area la Florida, in honor of Pascua Florida (feast of the flowers), a popular celebration held in Spain around Easter.

• A prior Constitution in 1868 provided that the Seminole Tribe was entitled to a member in the Florida Senate and House of Representatives.

• Saint Augustine is the oldest continuously inhabited European settlement in North America.
Upon the occasion of his retirement and with deep appreciation for his dedication and loyalty to the members of the Florida Senate; his work to ensure the security of the chamber, committee rooms, and gallery; his commitment to upholding Senate traditions and protocols; and in recognition of the friendships formed over his nearly 40 years of service, the Florida Senate dedicates this publication to our Sergeant at Arms, Donald Severance.
