COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE - Substantial Changes

I. Summary:

CS/CS/CS/SB 248 creates a public records exemption for a body camera recording made by a law enforcement officer. By definition, the body camera records audio and video data in the course of the officer performing his or her official duties and responsibilities.

The bill makes a body camera recording, or a portion thereof, confidential and exempt from public disclosure if the recording is taken:

- Within the interior of a private residence;
- Within the interior of a facility that offers health care, mental health care, or social services;
- At the scene of a medical emergency involving a death or involving an injury that requires transport to a medical facility; or
- In a place that a reasonable person would expect to be private.

A law enforcement agency may disclose a body camera recording in furtherance of its official duties and responsibilities and may also disclose the recording to another governmental agency in the furtherance of its official duties and responsibilities.

A law enforcement agency must disclose a body camera recording, or a portion thereof, to:

- A person recorded by a body camera (the person receives those portions of the recording relevant to the person's presence in the recording);

- The personal representative of a person recorded by a body camera (the person receives those portions of the recording relevant to the recorded person’s presence in the recording);
- A person not depicted in a body camera recording if the recording depicts a place in which the person lawfully resided, dwelled, or lodged at the time of the recording (the person receives those portions of the recording that record the interior of such a place); and
- Pursuant to a court order.

The bill specifies grounds the court must consider in determining whether to order disclosure of the body camera recording. In any proceeding regarding the disclosure of a body camera recording, the law enforcement agency that made the recording must be given reasonable notice of hearings and an opportunity to participate.

A law enforcement agency must retain a body camera recording for at least 90 days.

The exemption applies retroactively. It does not supersede any other exemption existing prior to or created after the effective date of this exemption. Those portions of a body camera recording that are protected from disclosure by another exemption continue to be exempt or confidential and exempt.

The exemption is subject to the Open Government Sunset Review Act and stands repealed on October 2, 2020, unless reviewed and saved from repeal through reenactment by the Legislature.

The bill creates a new public record exemption; therefore, it requires a two-thirds vote of the members present and voting in each house of the Legislature for final passage.

II. Present Situation:

Body-Worn Cameras and Public Records

Body-Worn Cameras (BWCs) or “body cameras” are currently being used or considered for use by many law enforcement agencies. “BWCs are mobile audio and video capture devices that allow officers to record what they see and hear. Devices can be attached to various body areas, including the head, by helmet, glasses or other means, or to the body by pocket, badge, or other means of attachment (such as in-car on the dash). They have the capability to record officer interactions that previously could only be captured by in-car interrogation room camera systems.”¹

Florida Police Chiefs Association staff is aware of 13 Florida police departments that currently use BWCs² and 9 Florida police departments that have implemented pilot programs to test the use of BWCs.³ The media have reported that the Flagler County Sheriff's Office is using BWCs⁴ and the Pasco County Sheriff has indicated an intent to purchase BWCs.⁵ Other Florida sheriffs' offices may be considering whether to use BWCs.

On December 1, 2014, the White House announced that President Barack Obama was proposing “a three-year $263 million investment package that will increase use of body-worn cameras, expand training for law enforcement agencies (LEAs), add more resources for police department reform, and multiply the number of cities where DOJ facilitates community and local LEA engagement. As part of this initiative, a new Body Worn Camera Partnership Program would provide a 50 percent match to States/localities who purchase body worn cameras and requisite storage. Overall, the proposed $75 million investment over three years could help purchase 50,000 body worn cameras.”⁶

In a recently released report on BWCs it was noted:

State public disclosure laws, often known as freedom of information laws, govern when footage from body-worn cameras is subject to public release. However, most of these laws were written long before law enforcement agencies began deploying body-worn cameras, so the laws do not necessarily account for all of the considerations that must be made when police departments undertake a body-worn camera program.

Although broad disclosure policies can promote police agency transparency and accountability, some videos—especially recordings of victims or from inside people's homes—will raise privacy concerns if they are released to the public or the news media. When determining how to approach public disclosure issues, law enforcement agencies must balance the legitimate interest of openness with protecting privacy rights.

In most state public disclosure laws, exceptions are outlined that may exempt body-worn camera footage from public release. For example, even the broadest disclosure laws typically contain an exception for video that contains evidence or is part of an ongoing investigation. Some state disclosure laws, such as those in North Carolina, also exempt personnel records from public release. Body-worn camera videos used to monitor officer performance may fall under this type of exception.⁷

Depending upon the content recorded by a BWC, the recording or particular information in the recording may be subject to a public records exemption in current Florida law. If not subject to an exemption, the recording would be a public record. Some of the current public records exemptions that may be relevant to a BWC recording include:

- Active criminal intelligence information and active criminal investigative information (exempt);⁸
- Information revealing surveillance techniques or procedures or personnel (exempt);⁹
- Information revealing the substance of a confession of a person arrested (exempt);¹⁰
- Information revealing the identity of a confidential informant or a confidential source (exempt);¹¹
- Criminal intelligence information or criminal investigative information that reveals the identity of the victim of the crime of child abuse or any sexual offense or a videotape or image of any part of the body of the victim of a statutorily-specified sexual offense (confidential and exempt);¹²
- Any information in a videotaped statement of a minor who is alleged to be or who is a victim of a statutorily-specified sexual offense, which reveals that minor's identity, home, school, etc. (confidential and exempt);¹³ or
- Information revealing undercover personnel of any criminal justice agency (exempt).¹⁴

Public Records Laws

The Florida Constitution provides every person the right to inspect or copy any public record made or received in connection with the official business of any public body, officer, or employee of the state, or of persons acting on their behalf.¹⁵ The records of the legislative, executive, and judicial branches are specifically included.¹⁶

The Florida Statutes also specify conditions under which public access must be provided to government records. The Public Records Act¹⁷ guarantees every person's right to inspect and copy any state or local government public record¹⁸ at any reasonable time, under reasonable conditions, and under supervision by the custodian of the public record.¹⁹

Only the Legislature may create an exemption to public records requirements.²⁰ This exemption must be created by general law and must specifically state the public necessity justifying the exemption.²¹ There is a difference between records the Legislature designates exempt from public records requirements and those the Legislature designates confidential and exempt. A record classified as exempt from public disclosure may be disclosed under certain circumstances.²² If the Legislature designates a record as confidential and exempt from public disclosure, such record may not be released, by the custodian of public records, to anyone other than the persons or entities specifically designated in the statutory exemption.²³ Further, the exemption must be no broader than necessary to accomplish the stated purpose of the law. A bill enacting an exemption may not contain other substantive provisions²⁴ and must pass by a two-thirds vote of the members present and voting in each house of the Legislature.²⁵

Open Government Sunset Review Act

The Open Government Sunset Review Act (referred to hereafter as the “OGSR”) prescribes a legislative review process for newly created or substantially amended public records or open meetings exemptions.²⁶ The OGSR provides that an exemption automatically repeals on October 2nd of the fifth year after creation or substantial amendment; in order to save an exemption from repeal, the Legislature must reenact the exemption.²⁷

The OGSR provides that a public records or open meetings exemption may be created or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose and is no broader than necessary.²⁸ An ¹⁸ Section 119.011(12), F.S., defines “public records” to mean “all documents, papers, letters, maps, books, tapes, photographs, films, sound recordings, data processing software, or other material, regardless of the physical form, characteristics, or means of transmission, made or received pursuant to law or ordinance or in connection with the transaction of official business by any agency.” Section 119.011(2), F.S., defines “agency” to mean “any state, county, district, authority, or municipal officer, department, division, board, bureau, commission, or other separate unit of government created or established by law including, for the purposes of this chapter, the Commission on Ethics, the Public Service Commission, and the Office of Public Counsel, and any other public or private agency, person, partnership, corporation, or business entity acting on behalf of any public agency.” The Public Records Act does not apply to legislative or judicial records *Locke v. ²⁵ FLA. CONST., art. I, s. 24(c).

²⁶ Section 119.15, F.S. Section 119.15(4)(b), F.S., provides that an exemption is considered to be substantially amended if it is expanded to include more information or to include meetings. The OGSR does not apply to an exemption that is required by federal law or that applies solely to the Legislature or the State Court System pursuant to section 119.15(2), F.S.

exemption serves an identifiable purpose if it meets one of the following purposes and cannot be accomplished without the exemption:

- It allows the state or its political subdivision to effectively and efficiently administer a program, and administration would be significantly impaired without the exemption.²⁹
- The release of sensitive personal information would be defamatory or would jeopardize an individual's safety. If this public purpose is cited as the basis of an exemption, however, only personal identifying information is exempt.³⁰
- It protects trade or business secrets.³¹

In addition, the Legislature must find that the purpose of the exemption overrides Florida's public policy strongly favoring open government.

The OGSR also requires specified questions to be considered during the review process.³² In examining an exemption, the OGSR asks the Legislature to carefully question the purpose and necessity of reenacting the exemption.

If, in reenacting an exemption, the exemption is expanded, then a public necessity statement and a two-thirds vote for passage are required.³³ If the exemption is reenacted without substantive changes or if the exemption is narrowed, then a public necessity statement and a two-thirds vote for passage are not required. If the Legislature allows an exemption to sunset, the previously exempt records will remain exempt unless provided for by law.³⁴

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill creates s. 119.071(2)(1), F.S., which creates a public records exemption for a body camera recording made by a law enforcement officer.³⁵ As defined in the bill a "body camera" is a portable electronic recording device that is worn on a law enforcement officer's body and that ³¹ Section 119.15(6)(b)3., F.S.

³² Section 119.15(6)(a), F.S. The specified questions are:

- What specific records or meetings are affected by the exemption?
- Whom does the exemption uniquely affect, as opposed to the general public?
- What is the identifiable public purpose or goal of the exemption?
- Can the information contained in the records or discussed in the meeting be readily obtained by alternative means? If so, how?
- Is the record or meeting protected by another exemption?
- Are there multiple exemptions for the same type of record or meeting that it would be appropriate to merge?

³³ FLA. CONST., art. I, s. 24(c).

³⁴ Section 119.15(7), F.S.

³⁵ The bill states that "law enforcement officer" has the same meaning as provided in s. 943.10, F.S. Section 943.10(1), F.S., defines a "law enforcement officer" as any person who is elected, appointed, or employed full time by any municipality or the state or any political subdivision thereof; who is vested with authority to bear arms and make arrests; and whose primary responsibility is the prevention and detection of crime or the enforcement of the penal, criminal, traffic, or highway laws of the state. This definition includes all certified supervisory and command personnel whose duties include, in whole or in part, the supervision, training, guidance, and management responsibilities of full-time law enforcement officers, part-time law enforcement officers, or auxiliary law enforcement officers but does not include support personnel employed by the employing agency.

records audio and video data in the course of the officer performing his or her official duties and responsibilities.

The bill makes a body camera recording, or a portion thereof, confidential and exempt from public disclosure if the recording is taken:

- Within the interior of a private residence;
- Within the interior of a facility that offers health care, mental health care, or social services;
- At the scene of a medical emergency involving a death or involving an injury that requires transport to a medical facility; or
- In a place that a reasonable person would expect to be private.

A law enforcement agency may disclose a body camera recording in furtherance of its official duties and responsibilities and may also disclose the recording to another governmental agency in the furtherance of its official duties and responsibilities.

A law enforcement agency must disclose a body camera recording, or a portion thereof, to:

- A person recorded by a body camera (the person receives those portions of the recording relevant to the person's presence in the recording);
- The personal representative³⁶ of a person recorded by a body camera (the person receives those portions of the recording relevant to the recorded person's presence in the recording);³⁷
- A person not depicted in a body camera recording if the recording depicts a place in which the person lawfully resided, dwelled, or lodged at the time of the recording (the person receives those portions of the recording that record the interior of such a place); and
- Pursuant to a court order.³⁸

The bill provides that, in addition to any other grounds the court may consider in determining whether to order that a body camera recording be disclosed, the court must consider whether:

- Disclosure is necessary to advance a compelling interest;
- The recording contains information that is otherwise exempt or confidential and exempt under the law;
- The person requesting disclosure is seeking to obtain evidence to determine legal issues in a case in which the person is a party;
- Disclosure would reveal information regarding a person that is of a highly sensitive personal nature;
- Disclosure may cause reputational harm or jeopardize the safety of a person depicted in the recording;
- Confidentiality is necessary to prevent a serious and imminent threat to the fair, impartial, and orderly administration of justice;

³⁶ The bill defines "personal representative" as a parent of, a court-appointed guardian of, an attorney of, an agent of, or a person holding a power of attorney for a person recorded by a body camera. If a person depicted in the recording is deceased, the term also means the personal representative of the estate of the deceased person; the deceased person's surviving spouse, parent, or adult child; the deceased person's attorney or agent; or the parent or guardian of a surviving minor child of the deceased. An agent must possess written authorization of the recorded person to act on his or her behalf.

³⁷ This scenario would include a situation in which the person recorded was unable to give consent for some reason or was deceased.

³⁸ Currently, records which are held exempt or confidential and exempt are subject to disclosure by a court order.

- The recording could be redacted to protect privacy interests; and
- There is good cause to disclose all or portions of a recording.

In any proceeding regarding the disclosure of a body camera recording, the law enforcement agency that made the recording must be given reasonable notice of hearings and an opportunity to participate.

A law enforcement agency must retain a body camera recording for at least 90 days. Generally, records retained by law enforcement agencies are governed by statutes and rules promulgated by the Department of State, Division of Library Services.³⁹ Currently, public records may be destroyed in accordance with the retention schedules established by the Division of Library Services.⁴⁰ This language will require law enforcement to retain these recordings for a minimum amount of time but does not otherwise supersede the retention and destruction schedule established by the Division of Library Services.

The exemption applies retroactively. It does not supersede any other exemption existing prior to or created after the effective date of this exemption. Those portions of a body camera recording that are protected from disclosure by another exemption continue to be exempt or confidential and exempt.

The bill also provides a statement of public necessity for the exemption, as required by the Florida Constitution. The public necessity statement includes the following findings:

- There is an increased prevalence of body cameras being used by law enforcement officers.
- Body cameras preserve information in an objective manner that enhances the ability of both law enforcement officers and the public to review the circumstances surrounding an event in which law enforcement intervention occurs.
- Availability of readily observable and candid recordings increases transparency and public confidence in law enforcement officers.
- In certain instances, information recorded by body cameras is significantly more likely to capture highly sensitive personal information than other types of law enforcement recordings or documents.
- Public disclosure of these recordings could have an undesirable chilling effect:
 - People who know that they are being recorded by a body camera may be unwilling to fully cooperate with law enforcement officers if they know that a body camera recording can be made available to anyone in the public.
 - People may also be less likely to call a law enforcement agency for services if their sensitive personal information or the circumstances that necessitate a law enforcement agency's involvement are subject to public dissemination as a body camera recording.
- Body camera recordings could be used for criminal purposes if they were available upon request.

³⁹ Section 257.36, F.S. See State of Florida General Records Schedule GS2 For Law Enforcement, Correctional Facilities, and District Medical Examiners, effective February 19, 2015, available at <http://dos.myflorida.com/library-archives/records-management/general-records-schedules/> (last visited on March 31, 2015).

⁴⁰ Section 257.36(6), F.S.

- This exemption from public records requirements allows law enforcement officers to more effectively and efficiently administer their duties, which would otherwise be significantly impaired.
- These concerns regarding the impact of the public records requirements for body camera recordings not only necessitate the exemption of the recordings from public records requirements but also outweigh any public benefit that may be derived from their disclosure.

The exemption is subject to the Open Government Sunset Review Act and stands repealed on October 2, 2020, unless reviewed and saved from repeal through reenactment by the Legislature.

The effective date of the bill is July 1, 2015.

The bill creates a new public record exemption; therefore, it requires a two-thirds vote of the members present and voting in each house of the Legislature for final passage.

IV. Constitutional Issues:

A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

None.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

Vote Requirement

Article I, Section 24(c) of the Florida Constitution requires a two-thirds vote of the members present and voting for final passage of a newly created public record exemption. The bill creates a public record exemption; thus, it requires a two-thirds vote for final passage.

Public Necessity Statement

Article I, Section 24(c) of the Florida Constitution requires a public necessity statement for a newly created public record exemption. The bill creates a public record exemption and includes a public necessity statement.

Breadth of Exemption

Article I, Section 24(c) of the Florida Constitution requires a newly created public record exemption to be no broader than necessary to accomplish the stated purpose of the law. The bill exempts body camera recordings in limited circumstances: the interior of a residence; the interior of a health care, mental health care, or social services facility; the scene of a medical emergency involving a death or involving an injury that requires transport to a medical facility; and a place that a reasonable person would expect to be private. However, because descriptions of some of these places would require some interpretation by custodians of the recordings, questions may be raised as to whether the exemption is limited to what is necessary to accomplish the stated purpose of the law.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

D. Other Constitutional Issues:

The bill, in part, exempts from public disclosure a body camera recording that is taken in a place that a reasonable person would expect to be private.

Article I, Section 23 of the Florida Constitution provides:

Every natural person has the right to be let alone and free from governmental intrusion into the person's private life except as otherwise provided herein. This section shall not be construed to limit the public's right of access to public records and meetings as provide by law.

The Florida Supreme Court has stated that the right of privacy includes a right to “be free from uninvited observation or of interference in those aspect of [Floridians’] lives that fall within the ambit of this zone of privacy unless the intrusion is warranted by the necessity of a compelling state interest.”⁴¹ Referring to a case which predated Article I, Section 23 of the Florida Constitution, the Florida Supreme Court opined that the people have a fundamental right to control what they reveal about themselves and to whom they chose to reveal themselves, and noted “this power is exercised in varying degrees by differing individuals, the parameters of an individuals’ privacy can be dictated only by that individual.”⁴²

The Florida Supreme Court found that before the right of privacy attaches “a reasonable expectation of privacy must exist.”⁴³ The test for making that determination is “whether the law recognizes an individual’s legitimate expectation of privacy” in a certain type of record.⁴⁴ The Florida Supreme Court also recognizes the right to be free of observation and interference in aspects of life that fall within a “zone of privacy.”⁴⁵ In determining whether an individual has a legitimate expectation of privacy in a given case, the court must consider all of the circumstances, especially objective manifestations of that expectation.⁴⁶

Courts have used public records exemptions as guideposts of when a privacy interest exists. For example, the Florida Fourth District Court of Appeal relied on the Florida

⁴⁵ Shaktman, 553 So.2d at 150.

⁴⁶ Shaktman, 533 So.2d at 153. In his concurring opinion, the Chief Justice Ehrlich opined that “the zone of privacy covered by article I, section 23, can be determined only by reference to the expectations of each individual, and those expectations are protected provided they are not spurious or false. A determination of whether an individual has a legitimate expectation of privacy in any given case must be made by considering all the circumstances, especially objective manifestations of that expectation; for example, in cases where disclosure of purportedly private information is sought, circumstances, such as the kind of information, where it is kept, who has access to it and under what circumstances.” Id.

Supreme Court's finding that financial records were private, but also observed that there was a statutory public records exemption for financial information held by a state agency, and noted that "the legislature has recognized the confidential nature of the exact type of information at issue."⁴⁷ Likewise, the Second District Court of Appeal of Florida found that people have an expectation of privacy in their social security numbers, and as authority, noted that social security numbers were protected from disclosure by both federal and state law and by various rules of procedure.⁴⁸

V. Fiscal Impact Statement:

A. Tax/Fee Issues:

None.

B. Private Sector Impact:

None.

C. Government Sector Impact:

None.

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

The definition of a "personal representative" provides that a parent of a person recorded is permitted to get those portions of a body camera recording that are relevant to the represented recorded person's presence in the recording. This would permit the parent of an adult with full legal capacity to have his or her parent receive a copy of a body camera recording in contravention of his or her wishes. The phrase "parent of a minor child who is not an emancipated minor" may be more appropriate, depending on the intent of the Legislature.

VII. Related Issues:

None.

VIII. Statutes Affected:

This bill amends section 119.071 of the Florida Statutes.

IX. Additional Information:A. Committee Substitute – Statement of Substantial Changes:
(Summarizing differences between the Committee Substitute and the prior version of the bill.)CS/CS/CS by Rules Committee on April 2, 2015:

- Revises definitions of “body camera” and “personal representative” and defines “law enforcement officer” by reference to the meaning of that term in s. 943.10, F.S.
- Specifies that a portion of the body camera recording is also confidential and exempt.
- Revises language relating to places in which a recording, if made in those places, would be confidential and exempt.
- Specifies that a person depicted in a body camera recording or that person’s personal representative can only receive those portions of the recording that are relevant to the recorded person’s presence in the recording.
- Requires a law enforcement agency to disclose portions of a body camera recording to a person not depicted in the recording if the recording depicts a place in which the person lawfully resided, dwelled, or lodged at the time of the recording (the person receives those portions of the recording that record the interior of such a place).
- Specifies grounds the court must consider in determining whether to order disclosure of the body camera recording.
- Provides that, in any proceeding regarding the disclosure of a body camera recording, the law enforcement agency that made the recording must be given reasonable notice of hearings and an opportunity to participate.
- Provides that the new exemption does not supersede any other exemption existing prior to or created after the effective date of this exemption.
- Provides that those portions of a body camera recording that are protected from disclosure by another exemption continue to be exempt or confidential and exempt.
- Modifies the public necessity statement.

CS/CS by Governmental Oversight and Accountability on March 17, 2015:

- Defines body camera and personal representative.
- Makes body camera recordings confidential and exempt if they are taken in certain places.
- Requires law enforcement must release body camera recordings in certain circumstances.
- Provides that a body camera recording must be retained for 90 days.
- Provides for retroactive application to all body camera recordings.
- Makes the public necessity statement more specific.
- Creates a new paragraph to eliminate the need to renumber s. 119.071(2), F.S. and change cross references.

CS by Criminal Justice on February 16, 2015:

- Creates a public records exemption for an audio or video recording made by a law enforcement officer in the course of the officer performing his or her official duties or responsibilities, if the recording is taken within certain locations, shows a minor inside a school or on school property, or shows a child younger than 14 years of age at any location.

- Specifies how the exemption operates in relation to other exemptions that may apply.
- Provides for future legislative review and repeal of the exemption under the Open Government Sunset Review Act.
- Authorizes the law enforcement agency with custody over the recording to disclose the recording to another law enforcement agency in furtherance of that agency's official duties and responsibilities.
- Specifies persons who may inspect the recording.
- Requires a law enforcement agency to have a retention policy of not longer than 90 days for the audio or video recordings unless the recording is part of an active criminal investigation or criminal intelligence operation or a court orders its retention for a longer period.
- Requires a law enforcement agency to disclose its records retention policy for recordings under the new exemption.
- Provides a statement of public necessity for the exemption.

B. Amendments:

None.
