SUMMARY ANALYSIS

HJR 7105 passed the House on April 26, 2017. The joint resolution was passed as amended by the Senate on May 1, 2017 and returned to the House. The House concurred with the Senate amendment and passed the joint resolution on May 2, 2017.

The Florida Constitution requires all property to be assessed at just value (i.e. market value) as of January 1 of each year for purposes of ad valorem taxation. Ad valorem assessments are used to calculate property taxes that fund counties, municipalities, district school boards and some special districts. The taxable value against which local governments levy tax rates each year reflects just value as reduced by applicable exceptions and exemptions allowed by the Florida Constitution. One such exemption is on the first $25,000 of assessed value of a homestead property, which is exempt from all taxes. A second homestead exemption applies to the assessed value between $50,000 and $75,000, which is exempt from all taxes other than school district taxes.

This joint resolution proposes an amendment to the Florida Constitution to increase by up to $25,000 the current homestead exemption from non-school property taxes by exempting the assessed value of a homestead parcel between $100,000 and up to $125,000.

Subject to approval by 60 percent of voters during the 2018 general election or earlier special election, the amendment proposed in the joint resolution will take effect on January 1, 2019. The joint resolution is not subject to the governor's veto powers.

The Revenue Estimating Conference did not review the joint resolution as passed by both chambers. However, staff estimates that if voters approve the proposed constitutional amendment, the impact to non-school local government property taxes in Fiscal Year 2019-20 (the first year of implementation) will be approximately -$645 million, assuming current tax rates.

I. SUBSTANTIVE INFORMATION

A. EFFECT OF CHANGES:

Present Situation

Calculating Ad Valorem Taxes

The Florida Constitution reserves ad valorem taxation to local governments and prohibits the state from levying ad valorem taxes on real and tangible personal property.¹ Ad valorem taxes are annual taxes levied by counties, cities, school districts and certain special districts. These taxes are based on the “just” or fair market value of real and tangible property as determined by county property appraisers on January 1 of each year.² Fair market value is then adjusted by any applicable exceptions to the just value requirement such as the annual “save our homes” limitation on homestead property assessment increases.³ The value arrived at after accounting for just value exceptions is known as the assessed value. Property Appraisers then calculate taxable value by reducing the assessed value in accordance with any applicable exemption(s), such as the exemptions for homestead property.⁴ Each year, local governing boards levy millage rates (i.e. tax rates) on taxable value to generate the property tax revenue contemplated in their annual budgets.

Homestead Exemptions

The homestead exemption is specified in Article VII, Section 6 of the Florida Constitution, which provides that every person who holds legal or equitable title to real estate and uses said real estate as a permanent residence for themselves or a legal or natural dependent is entitled to exemption from taxes on the first $25,000 in assessed value.⁵ In 2008, Florida voters amended this provision to include an additional $25,000 exemption from all taxes other than school district taxes on assessed value greater than $50,000.⁶ The constitution also vests the legislature with authority to enact general law establishing the manner in which individuals qualify for exemption. Accordingly, s. 196.031(1)(b), F.S. automatically grants the additional, non-school homestead exemption to every individual who qualifies for the initial homestead exemption on the first $25,000 in assessed value.

Effect of Proposed Changes

This joint resolution proposes to amend Article VII, Section 6(a) of the Florida Constitution to increase by up to $25,000 the current homestead exemption from non-school property taxes by exempting the assessed value of a homestead parcel between $100,000 and up to $125,000. The proposed amendment will appear on the ballot during either the 2018 general election or an earlier special election held for the purpose of proposing the amendment to the voters.⁷ Pending approval by 60 percent of the electorate, the amendment will take effect on January 1, 2019.

⁷ Note: Pursuant to article XI, Section 5 of the Florida Constitution, placing the joint resolution on a special election ballot would require the legislature to pass a general law by 3/4ths vote of each house. Presently, this is not expected to happen.

II. FISCAL ANALYSIS & ECONOMIC IMPACT STATEMENT

A. FISCAL IMPACT ON STATE GOVERNMENT:

1. Revenues:

None.

2. Expenditures:

Article XI, Section 5(d) of the Florida Constitution requires proposed amendments or constitutional revisions to be published in a newspaper of general circulation in each county where a newspaper is published. The amendment or revision must be published once in the 10th week and again in the sixth week immediately preceding the week the election is held. The division of Elections within the Department of State has not estimated the publication costs for advertising the joint resolution.

However, based on 2016 advertising costs, staff estimates full publication costs for advertising the proposed constitutional amendment to be approximately $135,900. This would likely be paid from non-recurring General Revenue Funds.

B. FISCAL IMPACT ON LOCAL GOVERNMENTS:

1. Revenues:

The Revenue Estimating Conference did not review the joint resolution as passed by both chambers. However, staff estimates that if voters approve the proposed constitutional amendment, the impact to non-school local government property taxes in Fiscal Year 2019-20 (the first year of implementation) will be approximately -$645 million, assuming current tax rates.

2. Expenditures:

None.

C. DIRECT ECONOMIC IMPACT ON PRIVATE SECTOR:

If the amendment is adopted, staff estimates that beginning in fiscal year 2019-20, homestead property owners will realize lower property taxes than would otherwise occur.

D. FISCAL COMMENTS:

None.
