Programming and services for victims of sex trafficking to include, but not limited to, residential safe housing, public education and awareness, outreach to victims on the streets and in jails, and youth prevention programs. Provide victims with improved physical and mental health, a good quality education, enhance victims' abilities to become economically self sufficient, reduces recidivism, substance abuse and will divert victims from the criminal and juvenile justice system. Ultimately, the women served will become contributing members of the community.

A priority goal of Selah Freedom is to build resiliency and sustainability of its infrastructure, to have the ability to provide programs and direct services to victims of sex trafficking and sexual exploitation.

These funds will be used to support positions not currently funded by grants in our Awareness and Outreach Programs, Prof Admin Personnel, Operations and Professional Contractors and for the cost of attaining accreditati

b. What activities and services will be provided to meet the intended purpose of these funds?

Victims will have doctor's visits, check-ups, and treatment, education and awareness on sex trafficking and youth prevention, support groups, safe houses to live in, essential needs to sustain life for clients.

To have the ability to continue these victim services Selah Freedom must be resilient and have sustainability. We are purposefully building a strong infrastructure to ensure grant and other governing body compliance to have a consistent cash flow for providing services to these victims and for the prevention of future victims.

c. What direct services will be provided to citizens by the appropriation project?

Residential safe housing provides safe housing and comprehensive restorative healing for women who are in sex trafficking. The women learn basic life skills, GED support, vocational and college training, therapeutic services, budgeting etc. in an effort for them to become contributing members of our community. Prevention programs are for youth 5-17 to teach them tactics used by predators and how to keep themselves safe from becoming a victims of traffickers and sexual assault. Outreach on the streets and in jails is in collaboration with local law enforcement. Women who are still in sex trafficking are able to receive support services in an effort to avoid further victimization. The outreach program included TYLA (Turn Your Life Around), a court diversionary program in collaboration with law enforcement, and the State Attorney's Office.

Education and Awareness are programs presented to general public, law enforcement, judicial, youth, faith based community, student clubs-high schools.

d. Who is the target population served by this project? How many individuals are expected to be served?

Female victims of sexual exploitation. Included in this demographic are persons with poor mental health, persons who are jobless, economically disadvantaged, homeless, high school students, university/college students, currently or formerly incarcerated persons, and victims of crime. >400 victims are expected to be served. In addition, >1,400 youth ages 5-17 at risk of being sex trafficked are anticipated to be educated with prevention curriculum, and >900,000 from the general public to be provided with awareness and education about the issue of sex trafficking in America.

e. What is the expected benefit or outcome of this project? What is the methodology by which this outcome will be measured?

To improve physical health. 90% of clients will have doctor's visits for treatment of STD's, hepatitis, and annual exams. Improve mental health. 100% of residential clients will engage in therapeutic treatment. Improve quality of education. Over 50,000 people annually receive education/awareness on sex trafficking issues. To protect the general public from harm. To enhance specific individual's economic self sufficiency. 100% of clients served in residential programs are trained in an Employment Empowerment Program to successfully navigate employment with our employment partners. Reduce recidivism. 87% of clients will will not return to the life after graduating the Selah Freedom Residential Program. Reduce substance abuse. 100% of women in programs will be substance free. Divert from criminal/juvenile justice system. 91% of youth participants indicate a greater understanding of sex trafficking and exploitation after participating in our training.

f. What are the suggested penalties that the contracting agency may consider in addition to its standard penalties for failing to meet deliverables or performance measures provided for the contract?
