I. SUMMARY:

HB 3925 provides for a public records exemption for any medical, financial or mental health records necessary to evaluate the public guardianship system, to assess the need for additional public guardianship offices or services, or to develop the annual report of the Statewide Public Guardianship Office. The bill provides a statement of public necessity.

This bill is tied to HB 3923 relating to guardianship.

This bill will not have a fiscal impact.

II. SUBSTANTIVE RESEARCH:

A. PRESENT SITUATION:

Article I, s. 24, Florida Constitution, expresses Florida's public policy regarding access to government records in providing that:

(a) Every person has the right to inspect or copy any public records made or received in connection with the official business of any public body, officer, or employee of the state, or persons acting on their behalf, except with respect to records exempted pursuant to this section or specifically made confidential by this Constitution. This section specifically includes the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of government and each agency or department created thereunder; counties, municipalities, and districts; and each constitutional officer, board, and commission, or entity created pursuant to law or this Constitution.

Article I, s. 24, Florida Constitution, does, however, permit the Legislature to provide by general law for the exemption of records from the requirements of s. 24. The general law exempting the records must state with specificity the public necessity justifying the exemption and can be no broader than necessary to accomplish the stated purpose of the law.

Public policy regarding access to government records is also addressed in the Florida Statutes. Section 119.07, Florida Statutes, provides:

Every person who has custody of a public record shall permit the record to be inspected and examined by any person desiring to do so, at a reasonable time, under reasonable conditions, and under supervision by the custodian of the public record or the custodian's designee.

Section 119.15, Florida Statutes, provides that an exemption may be created or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose and may be no broader than is necessary to meet the public purpose it serves. An identifiable public purpose is served if the exemption meets one of the following purposes and the Legislature finds that the purpose is sufficiently compelling to override the strong public policy of open government and cannot be accomplished without the exemption:

1. Allows the state or its political subdivisions to effectively and efficiently administer a governmental program, which administration would be significantly impaired without the exemption;
2. Protects information of a sensitive personal nature concerning individuals, the release of which information would be defamatory to such individuals or cause unwarranted damage to the good name or reputation of such individuals or would jeopardize the safety of such individuals. However, in exemptions under this subparagraph, only information that would identify the individuals may be exempted; or
3. Protects information of a confidential nature concerning entities, including, but not limited to, a formula, pattern, device, combination of devices, or compilation of information which is used to protect or further a business advantage over those who do not know or use it, the disclosure of which information would injure the affected entity in the marketplace.

HB 3925 (formerly PCB 98-01 by the Committee on Real Property & Probate) creates the Statewide Public Guardianship Office. Currently each office of public guardian is administered by the chief judge of the circuit court. HB 3925 requires the new statewide office to conduct research including but not limited to the need for public guardianship services, and to provide oversight of the state's public guardians. In order to meet the requirements specified for this new office, the Statewide Public Guardianship Office will need access to sensitive medical, financial, and mental health records of the states' vulnerable citizens who are elderly, disabled, who have a developmental disability or who have a mental illness.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

This bill creates an exemption from s. 119.07(1), F.S., and s. 24(a), Art. I of the State Constitution, in order to provide the executive director of the newly created Statewide Public Guardianship Office access to medical, financial, or mental health records necessary to evaluate the public guardianship system, to assess the need for additional public guardianship offices or services, or to develop the annual report as required.
