II. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS:

A. PRESENT SITUATION:

In order to better organize the bill analysis, some bill sections have a present situation summary below. Not every section of the bill will need an individual summary.

HB 2007, generally

Removes statutory references to "furlough."

Present Situation: A furloughed youth is one who has been released from a commitment program and supervised by a DJJ case manager but not discharged by the committing court. The DJJ has jurisdiction over a youth on furlough although the parents have physical custody. It retains the discretion to terminate or revoke a youth's furlough status.

According to the DJJ, the term "furlough" is obsolete in the juvenile context because only adults are furloughed.

Section 1

The bill allows the DJJ to expand its newly proposed screening requirements for employees to ensure that persons who have been found guilty of or entered a plea of nolo contendre or guilty to any offense named in the bill may not work for the Department. These offenses include battery on a detention or commitment facility staff; transporting a minor across state lines with criminal intent pending custody proceedings; possession of weapons or destructive devices on school property; resisting arrest with violence; depriving a law enforcement or correctional officer means of protection or communication; aiding in an escape; recruiting a person to join a criminal gang; inflicting cruel or inhuman treatment on an inmate; harboring or concealing an escaped prisoner; engaging in sexual misconduct in juvenile justice programs; and introducing contraband to detention facilities.

Present Situation: When hiring employees who will work with juveniles, the DJJ is required to use Level 2 screening standards as provided for in s. 435.04, F.S. (1998 Supp.). Level 2 screenings must include, but are not limited to, employment history checks, fingerprinting for all purposes, and criminal history checks, statewide criminal and juvenile records checks through the FDLE's FCIC, and federal criminal records checks through the Federal Bureau of Investigation's NCIC. They may also include local criminal records checks through local law enforcement agencies. Security background investigations through Level 2 screenings must ensure that no persons subject to undergoing such a screening has been found guilty of, regardless of adjudication, or entered a plea of nolo contendere or guilty to any of the offenses delineated in s. 435.04(2), F.S. (1998 Supp.).

Section 2

The bill would add the records of a minor committed to a maximum-risk residential program to the list of juvenile records which are to be retained for five years after the date the offender reaches age 21, and then expunged (unless the minor is adjudicated as an adult for a forcible felony or, after becoming an adult, is convicted of a forcible felony and his or her criminal record has not yet been destroyed).

Present Situation: Presently, the FDLE retains the records of youth classified as serious or habitual juvenile offenders for five years after the date the youth reaches age 21. At that time, the records are expunged unless a person age 18 or older is convicted of a forcible felony and the person's criminal history record as a minor has not been destroyed. In this instance, the adult and minor records are merged to form the adult record. In addition, if a minor is adjudicated as an adult for a forcible felony, the record as a minor must be merged with the criminal history record as an adjudicated adult.

DATE: April 15, 1999

If a minor is not classified as a serious or habitual juvenile offender, the FDLE will retain the records for five years after the date the minor reaches age 19, then will expunge the records, unless one of the above exceptions are applicable.

Section 3

Authorizes the DLA, the state attorneys, the DOC, the DJJ, the Parole Commission, the State Courts Administrator and circuit court administrators, the FDLE, and law enforcement agencies to participate in and expend funds for crime prevention.

Present Situation: Section 960.001, F.S. (1998 Supp.), authorizes the DLA, the state attorneys, the DOC, the DJJ, the Parole Commission, the State Courts Administrator and circuit court administrators, the FDLE, and law enforcement agencies to develop victim assistance services and programs for persons affected by crime. These services may include victim assistance education and training, return of property to the victim, and notification of rights to restitution.

Section 5

"Aftercare" would be defined as the care, treatment, and supervision provided juveniles released from residential commitment programs to promote rehabilitation and prevent recidivism. The purpose of aftercare is to protect the public, reduce recidivism, increase responsible productive behavior, and provide for successful transition of the youth from the department to the family. Examples of aftercare include, but are not limited to, minimum-risk nonresidential programs, reentry services and postcommitment community control (PCCC).

Also, minimum-risk nonresidential programs are expanded to include any nonresidential or supervision programs that are used for aftercare placement.

Present Situation: There is no statutory definition provided for the term "aftercare" services. However, by statute, aftercare is required to be in the juvenile justice continuum of programs and services offered to youth committed to the DJJ. Because the term "aftercare" is not defined by statute, it has been difficult for those implementing ch. 985, F.S., to know exactly what programs fall within the aftercare category.

Sections 6 and 7

Replaces the requirement that the DJJ inform school superintendents of the presence of any child who has a known history of sexual behavior with other juveniles with the requirement that the DJJ disclose to school superintendents the presence of any child over whom the DJJ has control, who has a criminal history of sexual behavior.

Present Situation: The DJJ must disclose to a school superintendent of the presence of a child who is under the supervision of the DJJ who: has a known history of sexual behavior with other juveniles, is an alleged sex offender, or who has been convicted of certain sexual offenses.

The phrase, "a known history of sexual behavior" is undefined and has resulted in confusing constructions. For example, a juvenile, whose past behavior consists only of innocuous acts such as kissing between consenting juveniles, could fall within the meaning of this vague phrase.

Section 10

Youth charged with certain misdemeanors will now have those records submitted to the FDLE for inclusion in the state criminal history records and utilized by criminal justice agencies for criminal justice purposes.

Present Situation: Under the provisions of s. 985.212, F.S., a child charged with certain misdemeanors will have their fingerprints and photographs taken and submitted to the FDLE. These misdemeanors include assault; battery; carrying a concealed weapon; unlawful use of destructive devices or bombs; negligent treatment of children; assault on a law enforcement officer, a firefighter, or other specified officers; open carrying of a weapon; exposure of sexual organs; unlawful possession of a firearm; petit theft; cruelty to animals; and arson, resulting in bodily harm to a firefighter. Furthermore, a law enforcement agency, in its discretion, may fingerprint and photograph a juvenile who is taken into custody based on probable cause that the juvenile committed any other violation of law. These records must not be made available for public disclosure, but can be made available to other law enforcement and criminal justice agencies, such as FDLE. The FDLE, however, is not statutorily authorized to thereafter release these records to other law enforcement and criminal justice agencies.

Section 11

Replaces all references to "aftercare" with "postcommitment community control." Allows youth to be released to a post-residential, minimum-risk nonresidential aftercare program following commitment to a residential commitment program. Provides for youth failing to complete the program.

Present Situation: There are no statutory definitions of aftercare programs, but the Juvenile Justice Accountability Board (JJAB) defines it as a post-placement program for juveniles completing the initial phase of a commitment program. A transition plan is developed to reintroduce the youth to the community and to provide the appropriate educational or vocational training. The objectives of aftercare programs are to eliminate re-offending and to assist youth with successful readjustment into the community.

Aftercare services are provided for any youth returning to his community from a residential commitment program. (See, s. 985.316, F.S.) Generally, for conditions of aftercare services, the authority of the DJJ is limited to what the courts will allow for youth still committed. However, the DJJ does have the authority to transfer a youth from a commitment program or facility to another program of the same, higher, or lower restrictiveness level. (See, s. 985.404, F.S.)

Section 15

Requires the Juvenile Justice Standards and Training Commission (JJSTC) to establish a certified program for juvenile justice training with competency-based examinations. Outlines minimum employment requirements for DJJ staff. These minimum hiring standards require that, as of October 1, 1999, new employees must:

- be at least 19 years old;
- be a high school graduate or its equivalent;
- not have been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor involving perjury or a false statement, or have been dishonorably discharged from the military;
- have abided by the fingerprinting and background investigations provided in ch. 985; and
- have submitted an affidavit attesting to the applicant's compliance with the above requirements.

Present Situation: Section 985.406, F.S. (1998 Supp.), provides for juvenile justice training for all staff and providers delivering services to youth. The JJSTC designs, implements, maintains, evaluates, and revises basic training programs. The program must include a curriculum-based examination, and all DJJ program staff and providers who deliver direct care services must successfully complete the training. Currently, there are no minimum requirements for employment standards.

Section 16

Creates s. 985.4145, F.S., to provide the DJJ with the statutory authority to have a direct service organization (DSO). Defines DSOs as not-for-profit, incorporated organizations whose sole purpose is to support the juvenile justice system. Sets out requirements for DJJ DSOs.

Present Situation: The Florida Business Partners for Prevention (FBPP) is a public-private organization that has had an ongoing partnership with the DJJ since 1994. At present, the FBPP has no bylaws or articles of incorporation, but it desires to organize for the purpose of serving as an advisory and support group of the DJJ, with reciprocal staff provided by the DJJ. Moreover, the organization wishes to apply for incorporation as a non-profit charitable DSO. At the present time, however, the DJJ has no statutory authority to have a DSO.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

- (1) Criminal history records of minors committed to maximum-risk residential programs would now be included in the list of records the state would retain for five years past a youth's 21st birthday before the records could be expunged.
- (2) The Florida Business Partners for Prevention may adopt bylaws and develop an organizational structure to assist DJJ in juvenile crime prevention efforts. The organization may incorporate as a not-for-profit organization and become a DJJ Direct Support Organization.
- (3) HB 2007 would provide the first definition of "aftercare". The DJJ would retain authorization to transfer youth unsuccessfully completing aftercare to other programs. The bill also changes the term "aftercare" to post-commitment community control.
- (4) Youth fingerprints and photographs submitted to the FDLE for certain misdemeanor offenses would become a part of the state criminal history records to be used by criminal justice agencies for criminal justice purposes.
- (5) The DJJ would no longer have to inform school superintendents of the presence of any child with a known history of non-criminal sexual behavior with other juveniles. Rather, the DJJ would only be required to inform superintendents of juveniles who have a criminal history of sexual offenses.
- (6) The DJJ would create a competency-based job classification system for juvenile justice direct-care staff. In addition, there would now be minimum qualifications for employment.
- (7) The DLA, the state attorneys, the DOC, the DJJ, the Parole Commission, the State Courts Administrator and circuit court administrators, the FDLE, and law enforcement agencies would be authorized to participate in and expend funds for crime prevention.
- (8) Allows an officer, who has probable cause to believe that a juvenile is in violation of his or her home detention, or has absconded from a juvenile justice residential commitment program, may take the juvenile into custody.
- (9) Makes the Rules of Evidence used in juvenile appellate cases the same as in the adult system.
- (10) Provides the DJJ with the authority to operate a welfare trust fund.

VI. AMENDMENTS OR COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE CHANGES:

In its March 9, 1999, full committee meeting, the Committee on Juvenile Justice passed six amendments to HB 2007.

- Amendment 1) Allows the DJJ to expand its newly proposed screening requirements for employees to ensure that persons who have been found guilty of or entered a plea of nolo contendere or guilty to any offense named in the amendment may not work for the DJJ. These offenses are battery on a detention or commitment facility staff; transporting a minor across state lines with criminal intent pending custody proceedings; possession of electric weapons or destructive devices on school property; resisting arrest with violence; depriving a law enforcement officer means of protection or communication; aiding in an escape; harboring or concealing an escaped prisoner; and introducing contraband to detention facilities.
- Amendment 2) Removes the rulemaking authority from the Department of Legal Affairs' Office of the Attorney General to adopt minimum standards for juvenile sexual offender programs.
- Amendment 3) Corrects statutory reference for youth escaping from detention or residential facilities.
- Amendment 4) Inserts a title amendment relating to aftercare programs.
- Amendment 5) Deletes the provision in PCB JJ 99-04 that would have authorized the DJJ to use tax-exempt financing, including the issuance of tax-exempt bonds and certificates of participation.
- Amendment 6) Requires the DJJ to disclose to the superintendent of a school system the presence of any youth in the care of the department who has received an adjudication of delinquency or had an adjudication withheld for a sexual offense.

On April 14, 1999, the Committee on Governmental Operations adopted a strike-everything amendment, and reported the amended bill favorably. The amendment makes the following changes in HB 2007:

- Requires the DJJ to disclose to a school superintendent that a juvenile has a history of criminal sexual behavior with other juveniles.
- Adds that an officer, who has probable cause to believe that a juvenile is in violation of his or her home detention, or has absconded from a juvenile justice residential commitment program, may take the juvenile into custody.
- Revamps current law relating to the Community Juvenile Justice Partnership Grant program to clarify the types of programs and services that should be provided with these funds, and the criteria the DJJ must consider when awarding these grants.
- Makes the Rules of Evidence used in juvenile appellate cases the same as are used in the adult system.
- Provides the DJJ with the authority to operate a welfare trust fund.
- Deletes the requirement that DJJ employees have passed a physical exam, be a U.S. citizen, and complete a commission-approved basic training program.
