I. SUMMARY:

The first ten amendments to the United States Constitution are referred to as the Bill of Rights. The Bill of Rights originated from the Founding Fathers' concern that the states retain their basic rights. The Founding Fathers wanted to "set limits on the power of the majority over the minority and the power of the government over the individual".

This bill creates s. 683.25, F.S., and designates December 15 as "Bill of Rights Day". By designating December 15 as "Bill of Rights Day", the public's awareness of the freedoms provided to them by the Bill of Rights may increase. This bill further provides that the Governor may issue every year a proclamation designating December 15 as "Bill of Rights Day", and call upon "all citizens of the state to observe the occasion".

This bill does not appear to have a fiscal impact on state or local governments.

B. PRESENT SITUATION:

Bill of Rights

On December 20, 1787, Thomas Jefferson said, “[a] bill of rights is what the people are entitled to against every government on earth, general or particular, and what no just government should refuse”.<sup>1</sup>

The first ten amendments to the United States Constitution are referred to as the Bill of Rights. Congress proposed these amendments on September 25, 1789. Ratification of the first ten amendments was completed on December 15, 1791.

The Bill of Rights originated from the Founding Fathers’ concern that the states retain their basic rights. The Founding Fathers wanted to “set limits on the power of the majority over the minority and the power of the government over the individual”.<sup>2</sup>

The first amendment provides for the freedom of religion, speech, press, and the right of the people to peaceably assemble and to petition Government. The second amendment provides for a well-regulated Militia. During a time of peace, the third amendment states that no soldier shall be housed without consent of the owner. The fourth amendment protects the people against unreasonable search and seizures. The fifth amendment provides that no person shall be deprived of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law. The right to a speedy and public trial is provided for in the sixth amendment. The right to trial by jury is preserved in the seventh amendment. The eighth amendment protects the people against excessive bail, fines, and cruel and unusual punishments. The ninth amendment states, “[t]he enumeration in the Constitution, of certain rights, shall not be construed to deny or disparage others retained by the people”. The tenth amendment protects each state from excessive Federal Government power.

The Bill of Rights limits and defines the powers of government; it recognizes, affirms, and protects fundamental human and civil rights, and it secures people’s basic freedoms.

Bill of Rights Day

House Resolution 9011 was adopted April 12, 2000. It designated December 15, 2000, as "Bill of Rights Day". On April 27, 2000, Senate Resolution 1968 was adopted; similarly, it designated December 15, 2000, as "Bill of Rights Day". These resolutions only established one day in the year 2000 as a "Bill of Rights Day". The resolutions did not address any other years.
