I. Summary:

This bill creates a public records exemption for all personal identifying information that is contained in records relating to an individual’s health or eligibility for paratransit services under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, and that is made or received by local government entities or their service providers. The bill allows release of such information with the express written consent of the individual or the individual’s legally authorized representative; in a medical emergency, but only to the extent necessary to protect the health or life of the individual; or by order of a court upon a showing of good cause.

This bill substantially amends section 119.07 of the Florida Statutes.

II. Present Situation:

Public Records Law

Article I, s. 24(a), Florida Constitution, expresses Florida’s public policy regarding access to government records as follows:

Every person has the right to inspect or copy any public records made or received in connection with the official business of any public body, officer, or employee of the state, or persons acting on their behalf, except with respect to records exempted pursuant to this section or specifically made confidential by this Constitution. This section specifically includes the legislative, executive, and judicial branches of government and each agency or department created thereunder; counties, municipalities, and districts; and each constitutional officer, board, and commission, or entity created pursuant to law or this Constitution.

Article I, s. 24(c), Florida Constitution, does, however, permit the Legislature to provide by general law for the exemption of records from the requirements of s. 24. The general law must state with specificity the public necessity justifying the exemption (public necessity statement) and must be no broader than necessary to accomplish its purpose.

Section 119.07(1)(a), F.S., provides that every person who has custody of a public record shall permit the record to be inspected and examined by any person desiring to do so, at a reasonable time, under reasonable conditions, and under supervision by the custodian of the public record or the custodian's designee.

Section 119.15, F.S., the Open Government Sunset Review Act of 1995, provides that an exemption may be created or maintained only if it serves an identifiable public purpose and may be no broader than is necessary to meet the public purpose it serves. An identifiable public purpose is served if the exemption meets one of the following purposes, and the Legislature finds that the purpose is sufficiently compelling to override the strong public policy of open government and cannot be accomplished without the exemption:

1. Allows the state or its political subdivisions to effectively and efficiently administer a governmental program, which administration would be significantly impaired without the exemption;
2. Protects information of a sensitive personal nature concerning individuals, the release of which information would be defamatory to such individuals or cause unwarranted damage to the good name or reputation of such individuals or would jeopardize the safety of such individuals. However, in exemptions under this subparagraph, only information that would identify the individuals may be exempted; or
3. Protects information of a confidential nature concerning entities, including, but not limited to, a formula, pattern, device, combination of devices, or compilation of information which is used to protect or further a business advantage over those who do not know or use it, the disclosure of which information would injure the affected entity in the marketplace.

Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) Paratransit Services

The Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 (ADA) requires that public entities, which operate non-commuter fixed route transportation services, also provide complementary paratransit service for individuals unable to use the fixed route system. The U.S. Department of Transportation issued regulations that specify to whom and under what circumstances this service is to be provided. In addition, the regulations require public entities that are subject to the complimentary paratransit requirements to develop and administer a process for determining if individuals who request service meet the regulatory criteria for eligibility.

Eligibility for complementary paratransit service is directly related to the inability of a person with a disability to use the existing fixed route service. The regulations describe three specific circumstances under which a person would be considered ADA paratransit eligible. The three categories of eligibility are:

- Any individual with a disability who is unable, as the result of a physical or mental impairment (including a vision impairment), and without the assistance of another individual (except the operator of a wheelchair lift or other boarding assistance device), to board, ride, or disembark from any vehicle on the system which is readily accessible to and usable by individuals with disabilities.
- Any individual with a disability who needs the assistance of a wheelchair lift or other boarding assistance device and is able, with such assistance, to board, ride, and disembark from any vehicle which is readily accessible to and usable by individuals with disabilities if the individual wants to travel on a route of the system during the hours of operation of the system at a time, or within a reasonable period of such time, when such a vehicle is not being used to provide designated public transportation on the route.
- Any individual with a disability who has a specific impairment-related condition that prevents such individual from traveling to a boarding location or from a disembarking location on such system.

In Florida, 23 county governments provide ADA Paratransit Services. In order to assure proper eligibility, an applicant must complete an application, which requires disclosure of medical and disability information, the applicant's social security number, and additional identifying information. Currently, there is no public records exemption for this information.

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

This bill amends s. 119.07(3), F.S., to create a public records exemption for an individual's personal identifying information that is contained in records relating to that individual's health or eligibility for paratransit services, under Title II of the Americans with Disabilities Act, held by local government entities or their service providers.

The bill provides for exceptions to this exemption. The information can be released with the express written consent of the individual or the individual's legally authorized representative; in a medical emergency, but only to the extent necessary to protect the health or life of the individual; or by order of a court upon a showing of good cause. The bill provides a public necessity statement, as required by Art. I, s. 24 of the Florida Constitution, which states that an individual's expectation and right to privacy in all matters relating to his or her personal health and eligibility for paratransit services necessitates this exemption and that such information is of a sensitive, personal nature.

The bill provides for retroactive application of the public records exemption. Additionally, this exemption is made subject to the Open Government Sunset Review Act of 1995 and will repeal on October 2, 2007, unless reviewed and saved from repeal through reenactment by the Legislature.
