2004 Legislature

CS for CS for SB 712

An act relating to a review under the Open Government Sunset Review Act; amending s.
73.0155, F.S.; revising a public-records exemption for business records submitted in eminent domain negotiations on business damages; providing for confidentiality; prescribing the information that is confidential and exempt from disclosure; prescribing certain conditions for the confidentiality and exemption; providing for limitations on the confidentiality and exemption; providing for access by employees of an agency; providing a penalty for disclosure; specifying that the information may be offered in evidence; providing for future legislative review and repeal; providing a statement of public necessity; providing an effective date.
Be It Enacted by the Legislature of the State of Florida: Section 1. Section 73.0155, Florida Statutes, is amended to read: 73.0155 Confidentiality; business information records provided to a governmental condemning authority (1) The following business information records provided by the owner of a business to a governmental condemning authority as part of an offer of business damages under pursuant to s. 73.015 is confidential and are exempt from the disclosure provisions of s. 24(a), Art. I of the State Constitution and s. 119.07(1) if the disclosure of such records would be likely to cause substantial harm to the 1 2 competitive position of the person providing such records and if the owner person providing such records requests in writing 3 that the information such records be held exempt :-4 5 (a) Federal tax returns or tax information confidential under 26 U.S.C. s. 6103. б 7 (b) State tax returns or tax information confidential under s. 213.053. 8 9 (c) Balance sheets, profit-and-loss statements, cash-flow statements, inventory records, or customer lists or 10 number of customers for a business operating on the parcel to 11 be acquired. 12 13 (d) A franchise, distributorship, or lease agreement 14 of which the business operating on the parcel to be acquired is the subject. 15 (e) Materials that relate to methods of manufacture or 16 production, potential trade secrets, patentable material, or 17 18 actual trade secrets as defined in s. 688.002. 19 (f) Other sensitive or proprietary information related to the business operating on the parcel to be acquired, if the 20 owner attests in writing to the governmental condemning 21 22 authority that: 23 1. The information is being relied upon to 24 substantiate a claim for business damages under s. 73.015; 2. The information has not otherwise been publicly 25 disclosed; 26 27 3. The information cannot be readily obtained by the 28 public using alternative means; 29 4. The information is used by the business to protect or further a business advantage over those who do not know or 30 31 use the information; and

2004 Legislature

2004 Legislature

CS for CS for SB 712

1	5. The disclosure of the information would injure the 2	business in the marketplace. Nothing in this section shall be 3	construed to prevent inspection of such records by the 4	Attorney General, members of the Legislature, and interested 5	state agencies; however, such records shall remain exempt from б	further disclosure.
7	(2) At the time that any information made confidential
8	and exempt from disclosure under subsection (1) is legally 9	available or subject to public disclosure for any reason, that 10	information is no longer confidential and exempt and shall be 11	made available for inspection and copying.
12	(3) An agency as defined in s. 119.011 may inspect and 13	copy records or information made confidential and exempt from 14	disclosure under subsection (1) exclusively for the 15	transaction of official business by, or on behalf of, an 16	agency. An agency receiving this confidential and exempt
17	information must maintain the confidentiality of that 18	information. Any employee or agent of the agency receiving 19	this confidential and exempt information who willfully and 20	knowingly violates this subsection commits a misdemeanor of 21	the first degree, punishable as provided by s. 775.082 or s.
22	775.083.
23	(4) This section does not prevent an agency from 24	offering information made confidential and exempt from 25	disclosure under subsection (1) as evidence in a legal 26	proceeding and does not prevent a court from determining 27	whether to close a portion of a court record from subsequent 28	public disclosure after trial in order to maintain the 29	confidentiality of that information.
30	(5) Subsection (1) This exemption is subject to the 31	Open Government Sunset Review Act in accordance with s. 119.15

2004 Legislature

and expires on October 2, 2009 2004, unless reviewed and 1 2 reenacted by the Legislature. 3 Section 2. (1) The Legislature finds that it is a public necessity to make confidential and exempt from public 4 disclosure sensitive business information that is submitted to 5 a governmental condemning authority by a business owner to б 7 substantiate an offer to settle a business-damage claim 8 resulting from the acquisition of a parcel for right-of-way 9 purposes through eminent domain. Specifically, the Legislature finds that this confidentiality and exemption from public 10 disclosure are necessary for federal and state tax returns and 11 tax information; balance sheets, profit-and-loss statements, 12 13 cash-flow statements, inventory records, and customer lists or number of customers for a business operating on the parcel; 14 franchise, distributorship, and lease agreements relating to a 15 business operating on the parcel; information in the nature of 16 trade secrets; and other sensitive or proprietary business 17 18 information, because the business uses this information to 19 protect or further an advantage over other businesses and disclosure of the information would injure the business in the 20 marketplace, and because the governmental condemning authority 21 22 uses this information to evaluate the merits of a 23 business-damage claim and reluctance on the part of a business 24 to provide this information would significantly impair the 25 ability of the authority to conduct eminent domain activities. 26 (2) Federal and state tax returns and tax information; balance sheets, profit-and-loss statements, cash-flow 27 28 statements, inventory records, and customer lists or number of 29 customers for a business; franchise, distributorship, and lease agreements relating to a business; information in the 30 nature of trade secrets; and other sensitive or proprietary 31

2004 Legislature

1	business information are typically kept confidential by a
2	business and are not readily obtainable by the public through 3	alternative means. This information relates directly to the 4	operations of the business and reflects upon, and provides 5	insights into, the financial status, operating techniques and 6	activities, and strategic plans of the business. Competitors
7	of the business, who would not ordinarily have access to this 8	sensitive business information, could use it to undermine the 9	position that the business maintains in the marketplace by 10	adjusting their own operating techniques and activities and 11	strategic plans in response to what they learn about the 12	business. But for the acquisition by a governmental condemning 13	authority of property on which the business operates and the 14	requirement that the business submit an offer to settle a 15	business-damage claim, the business would not ordinarily be in 16	the position of having to release this information into a 17	public forum. The confidentiality and exemption from public 18	disclosure provided by this act, therefore, protect 19	information of a confidential nature concerning an entity and 20	are necessary to prevent the business from being unfairly
21	injured in the marketplace.
22	(3) Federal and state tax returns and tax information;
23	balance sheets, profit-and-loss statements, cash-flow 24	statements, inventory records, and customer lists or number of 25	customers for a business; franchise, distributorship, and 26	lease agreements relating to a business; information in the 27	nature of trade secrets; and other sensitive or proprietary
28	business information are critical to the evaluation of a claim
29	for business damages resulting from the acquisition of a 30	parcel by a governmental condemning authority. The authority
31	uses the information to determine how the taking of a portion

2004 Legislature

 business from a financial standpoint, to evaluate whether the amount that the business is claiming is accurate in relation to the actual business damages, and, ultimately, to determine how much to compensate the business for its damages. Without the information, a condemning authority would not be able to assess the accuracy of the business-damage offer the business submits and would have to approximate damages using nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages. An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith necotiations between the business for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business to release the information, promote exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain procrams. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	- 1	of the unevertee on which a business encycles will offer the 3amount that the business is claiming is accurate in relation4to the actual business damages, and, ultimately, to determine5how much to compensate the business for its damages. Without6the information, a condemning authority would not be able to7assess the accuracy of the business-damage offer the business8submits and would have to approximate damages using9nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages.10An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about11the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a12greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to13undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The14exchande of accurate information promotes good-faith15negotiations between the business and the governmental16condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process17an settlement on the amount of damages without having to18proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater19proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail if y and12subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this13sensitive business information, the confidentiality and14exemption from public disclosure provided by this act15encourage businesses to release the information, promote16settlements early in the condemnation process and before17irial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to18effectively and efficiently admini	1	of the property on which a business operates will affect the 44445101151261415151617171819191010111112131414151617171819191010111415161717181919101011141515161718191919191919101114151516171819191910101111121314151516171819191910111111121314151616171718191910
Now much to compensate the business for its damages. Without67assess the accuracy of the business-damage offer the business889nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages.1011111291291314151516171819191011111212131415151616171819191011111212131415151617181919191010111112131415151617181919101111111213141515161718191910101111121314151516161	3	amount that the business is claiming is accurate in relation the information, a condemning authority would not be able to assess the accuracy of the business-damage offer the business submits and would have to approximate damages using nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages. An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith negotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and excmption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	4	to the actual business damages, and, ultimately, to determine 7assess the accuracy of the business-damage offer the business8submits and would have to approximate damages using9nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages.10An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about11the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a12greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to13undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The14exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith15negotiations between the business and the governmental16condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process17and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach18a settlement on the amount of damages without having to19proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater20costs associated with the acquisition of property for public21transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in23sensitive business information, the confidentiality and24exemption from public disclosure provided by this act25encourage businesses to release the information, promote26settlements early in the condemning authorities to27trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to28effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain29programs.30Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	5	how much to compensate the business for its damages. Without submits and would have to approximate damages using nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages. An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith negotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	6	the information, a condemning authority would not be able to nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages. An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith negotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	7	assess the accuracy of the business-damage offer the business
An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith negotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this encourage business to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	8	submits and would have to approximate damages using the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith negotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs.	9	nonspecific information, such as industry trends or averages.
12greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to13undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The14exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith15negotiations between the business and the governmental16condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process17and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach18a settlement on the amount of damages without having to19proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater20costs associated with the acquisition of property for public21transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in23sensitive business information, the confidentiality and24exemption from public disclosure provided by this act25encourage businesses to release the information, promote26settlements early in the condemnation process and before27trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to28effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain29programs.30Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	10	An inability to obtain accurate and specific information about undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith negotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	11	the business creates the potential for the authority to pay a exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith negotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	12	greater amount than the actual damages or for the authority to neqotiations between the business and the governmental condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	13	undervalue the claim and reject the business's offer. The condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	14	exchange of accurate information promotes good-faith and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	15	negotiations between the business and the governmental a settlement on the amount of damages without having to proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	16	condemning authority early in the property-acquisition process proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	17	and, thereby, promotes opportunities for the parties to reach costs associated with the acquisition of property for public transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	18	a settlement on the amount of damages without having to transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	19	proceed to a full trial, which would likely entail greater subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	20	costs associated with the acquisition of property for public sensitive business information, the confidentiality and exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	21	transportation projects. Because, for the reasons cited in exemption from public disclosure provided by this act encourage businesses to release the information, promote settlements early in the condemnation process and before trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain programs. Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	22	subsection (2), a business is reluctant to share this 25 encourage businesses to release the information, promote 26 settlements early in the condemnation process and before 27 trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to 28 effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain 29 programs. 30 Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	23	sensitive business information, the confidentiality and
26 settlements early in the condemnation process and before 27 trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to 28 effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain 29 programs. 30 Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	24	exemption from public disclosure provided by this act
 27 trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to 28 effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain 29 programs. 30 Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	25	encourage businesses to release the information, promote
 28 effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain 29 programs. 30 Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004. 	26	settlements early in the condemnation process and before 29 programs. 30 Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	27	trial, and allow governmental condemning authorities to 30 Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.	28	effectively and efficiently administer eminent domain
	29	programs.
31	30	Section 3. This act shall take effect October 1, 2004.
	31	