SUMMARY ANALYSIS

HB 431 creates the Financial Literacy Council (Council) within the Office of the Chief Financial Officer to provide information and education about financial issues to consumers and small businesses.

The bill provides for purposes, membership, meetings, and powers and duties. It authorizes the council to seek resources from a variety of sources to support its efforts. The bill requires submission of an annual report beginning on January 1, 2007. The Fiscal Literacy Council may not continue as a governmental entity after December 31, 2010.

This bill does not appear to have a fiscal impact on local governments. The bill appears to have a minimal fiscal impact on state government. The Department of Financial Services states that it will provide necessary administrative staffing for the Council within current resources.

FULL ANALYSIS

I. SUBSTANTIVE ANALYSIS

A. HOUSE PRINCIPLES ANALYSIS:

Provide Limited Government--the bill creates a new advisory body, the Financial Literacy Council, of up to nine members appointed by the Chief Financial Officer.

B. EFFECT OF PROPOSED CHANGES:

Current Situation

The elected Chief Financial Officer (CFO) is the head of the Department of Financial Services (DFS). Among the CFO's responsibilities are:

- Licensing and oversight of insurance agents and agencies;
- Investigating fraud, including identity theft and securities and insurance fraud;
- Overseeing cemeteries and funeral homes that sell pre-need contracts;
- Overseeing the state's accounting and auditing functions, including review of state contracts and safeguarding unclaimed property;
- Monitoring the investment of state funds and managing the deferred compensation program for state employees; and
- Ensuring that businesses have workers' compensation coverage in place for employees.

Within the DFS, the Financial Services Commission, composed of the Governor, Attorney General, Chief Financial Officer, and Commissioner of Agriculture, oversees the Office of Insurance Regulation and the Office of Financial Regulation.

- The Office of Insurance Regulation is responsible for regulation of all insurance companies and risk-bearing entities, including licensing, rates, policy forms, market conduct, claims, adjusters, issuance of certificates of authority, solvency, viatical settlements, and premium financing.
- The Office of Financial Regulation is responsible for overseeing state-chartered banks, credit unions, financial institutions, finance companies, and the securities industry.

Research indicates that some Floridians would benefit from improving their personal finance practices. A statewide survey of adult Floridians conducted in June 2004 by Mason-Dixon Polling & Research Inc. found:

- More than one-third have more debt than savings or investments;
- About 25% are putting nothing aside each month for retirement;
- More than 80% of Floridians have credit cards, and 35% report current debt levels over $5,000; and
- While 96% of Floridians review their monthly credit card statements, 23% of Floridians have never reviewed their credit reports.¹

Increasing age and income level tends to be associated with smarter personal finance practices.

In the 12 month period ending September 30, 2004, bankruptcy filings in Florida totaled 88,370. There were 1,202 business filings and 87,168 personal filings.² This includes filings under chapters 7, 11, 12, and 13.

Proposed Changes

The bill creates the Financial Literacy Council (Council) to provide a single state resource for consumers and small businesses to contact for basic financial information. The bill provides the Council's goals are:

- Equipping small businesses, young people, working adults, and seniors with the tools and resources they need to make informed financial decisions;
- Helping residents of the state learn more about personal financial issues, including, but not limited to applying for loans, managing debt, making sound investment choices, and saving for retirement;
- Facilitating the sharing of best practices for financial management that are characteristic of highly successful small businesses; and
- Serving as an educational forum for resource planning, financial planning, and management issues for small businesses.

The bill provides that the Council will be made up of the state Chief Financial Officer, or his or her designee, and not more than 9 other members to be appointed by the CFO.

- Six members must be persons with experience in various sectors of the financial industry, including banking, finance, insurance, real estate, and securities.

The appointed members are to represent urban and rural interests and the ethnic and cultural diversity of the state's population. Each member of the Council will receive reimbursement for per diem and travel expenses pursuant to s. 112.061, F.S.

The bill requires the Council to study financial problems affecting consumers (particularly young persons, seniors, working adults, and small businesses) due to a lack of knowledge of basic financial issues. The Council is to develop written materials to educate consumers and small businesses about basic financial issues and establish an outreach program by providing education at meetings of affected persons, by seminars, or by web-based media.

The bill allows the Council to apply for and accept funds, grants, gifts, and services from the state, the federal government or any of its agencies, or any other public or private source for the purpose of offsetting any clerical and administrative costs associated with the Council's duties. The bill directs all funds received by the Council to be deposited into the Insurance Regulatory Trust Fund and provides
