Prepared By: The Professional Staff of the Reapportionment Committee

[2012s1174.hms.docx]

BILL:	CS/SB 1174
INTRODUCER:	Reapportionment Committee
SUBJECT:	Establishing Congressional Districts
DATE:	February 6, 2012

I. Amendments Contained in Message:

House Amendment 1 – 832579

II. Summary of Amendments Contained in Message:

House Amendment 1 keeps 46 of Florida's 67 counties within single districts. This number is 3 more than the congressional map passed by the Senate and 19 more than Florida's current (benchmark) congressional plan. House Amendment 1 also keeps 383 of Florida's 410 cities within single districts. This number is 19 more than the congressional map passed by the Senate and 83 more than Florida's current congressional plan.

The districts in House Amendment 1 follow political and geographic boundaries to about the same extent as those in the congressional map passed by the Senate and to a much greater extent than those in Florida's current congressional plan. The ratios (relative to total district boundaries) are 83% for House Amendment 1, 82% for the congressional map passed by the Senate, and 69% for Florida's current congressional plan.

The average end-to-end length of congressional districts in House Amendment 1 is 81 miles. This is 2 miles less than the 83-mile average in the congressional map passed by the Senate and significantly less than the 98-mile average for Florida's current congressional districts.

The average perimeter of congressional districts in House Amendment 1 is 301 miles. This is 16 miles less than the 317-mile average in the congressional map passed by the Senate and significantly less than the 402-mile average among Florida's current congressional districts.

Like the congressional map passed by the Senate, House Amendment 1 has a total deviation of one person. It renumbers districts throughout the state. It reconfigures district boundaries within Lake, Hillsborough, Polk, Manatee, and Lee Counties, and it keeps Sarasota, Charlotte, and Okeechobee Counties within single districts. House Amendment 1 joins Hernando County with Citrus, Sumter, and Marion Counties, it joins Pasco County with northern Pinellas and Hillsborough Counties, and it joins Monroe County with west Miami-Dade County.

The attached maps and statistical analysis provide details similar to those attached to the bill analysis for the congressional plan passed by the Senate and the current (benchmark) plan.
