COMMITTEE SUBSTITUTE - Substantial Changes

I. Summary:

CS/CS/SB 130 prohibits the recreational discharge of a firearm in areas that are primarily residential. Violation of this prohibition is a first degree misdemeanor punishable by up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The bill provides exemptions for the lawful defense of life or property, the accidental discharge of a firearm or the performance of official duties that require the discharge of a firearm. Additionally, the penalties do not apply if, under the circumstances, the discharge does not pose a reasonably foreseeable risk to life, safety, or property.

II. Present Situation:

Legislative Preemption of the Field of Firearm and Ammunition Regulation

The Joe Carlucci Uniform Firearms Act

Section 790.33, F.S., known as The Joe Carlucci Uniform Firearms Act, became law in 1987.¹ The Act provides:

It is the intent of this section to provide uniform firearms laws in the state; to declare all ordinances and regulations null and void which have been enacted by any jurisdictions other than state and federal, which regulate firearms, ammunition, or components thereof; to prohibit the enactment of any future ordinances or regulations relating to firearms, ammunition, or components thereof unless specifically authorized by this section or general law; and to require local jurisdictions to enforce state firearms laws.²

The Act accomplished its stated purpose by “occupying the whole field of regulation of firearms and ammunition,” as stated in subsection (1) of the Act:

PREEMPTION.—Except as expressly provided by general law, the Legislature hereby declares that it is occupying the whole field of regulation of firearms and ammunition, including the purchase, sale, transfer, taxation, manufacture, ownership, possession, and transportation thereof, to the exclusion of all existing and future county, city, town, or municipal ordinances or regulations relating thereto. Any such existing ordinances are hereby declared null and void.³

Despite the provisions of the 1987 law and a Florida appellate court opinion upholding it,⁴ local governments enacted, considered enacting, or attempted to enforce existing ordinances that required trigger locks, prohibited concealed carry permit holders from lawfully carrying their firearms on municipal or county property, required special use permits for certain sporting goods stores, and banned recreational shooting.⁵

Recent Legislative Change

The Legislature amended s. 790.33, F.S., in 2011. The amendment created civil penalties of up to $5,000 for the knowing and willful violation of the preemption law by any elected or appointed public official or agency head. The amendment also created injunctive relief against the enforcement of any ordinance, regulation, or rule by local governmental entities.⁶

³ Section 790.33(1), F.S. (1987).

⁴ National Rifle Association v. City of South Miami, 812 So. 2d 504 (Fla. 3d DCA 2002).

⁵ For example see FL AGO 2000-42 (“May a municipality enact an ordinance requiring the use of locking devices on firearms stored within the city?”); FL AGO 2005-40 (“May a county pass an ordinance prohibiting the discharge of a firearm in proximity to persons or property when such discharge endangers the health, welfare, and safety of the citizens of such county?”). Similarly, note that s. 790.333, F.S., sets forth Legislative preemption of “the whole field of regulation of firearms and ammunition use at sport shooting and training ranges, including the environmental effects of projectile deposition at sport shooting and training ranges.” In FL AGO 2008-34, the following query was discussed: “May a county enforce its land development code to prohibit a shooting range in a residential land use district in light of section 790.333(8), Florida Statutes?” The Attorney General opined as follows: To read the preemption provision in section 790.333, Florida Statutes, as a total ban on the application of any zoning or land use regulation upon an existing or proposed sports shooting range would render section 823.16 (7), Florida Statutes...of no use or consequence. ...it is my opinion that a county clearly may impose existing zoning and land use regulations upon the siting of a proposed sports shooting range; however, no newly created or amended zoning or land use regulations may be enforced against existing ranges.

Subsequent to the 2011 amendment to s. 790.33, F.S., local governments began to examine, reevaluate, and repeal local ordinances related to firearms or ammunition.⁷

Discharging a Firearm

Prior to 2012, s. 790.15(1), F.S., did not address discharging a firearm on private property except that it was a first degree misdemeanor to knowingly discharge a firearm over any occupied premises.⁸

In 2012, the Legislature amended s. 790.15(1), F.S., to prohibit recklessly or negligently discharging a firearm outdoors on any property used primarily as the site of a dwelling as defined in s. 776.013, F.S., or zoned exclusively for residential use.⁹

Backyard Gun Ranges

In recent months, there have been reports of persons constructing “gun ranges” in their backyards.¹⁰ Many of the persons using backyard gun ranges live in residential neighborhoods, which cause their neighbors to be concerned for their safety. There was one report of a man being struck and killed by a stray bullet fired from a neighbor’s yard in Volusia County in December 2013.¹¹ According to the news reports, some local law enforcement and their legal counsel found the language “recklessly or negligently discharges a firearm,” as it appears in s. 790.15(1), F.S., to be subjective and vague.¹² This interpretation of the language seems to have inhibited law enforcement from taking a proactive approach in the reported circumstances.¹³

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Section 1 amends s. 790.15, F.S., to prohibit the recreational discharge of a firearm outdoors, including for target shooting or celebratory shooting, in an area that the person knows or reasonably should know is primarily residential in nature and that has a residential density of one or more dwelling units per acre. A violation of this law is a misdemeanor of the first degree punishable by up to a year in jail and a $1,000 fine.

The bill provides exemptions for the lawful defense of life or property, the accidental discharge of a firearm or the performance of official duties that require the discharge of a firearm.

⁷ FL AGO 2011-17 (“May [a] county regulate the recreational discharge of firearms in residentially zoned areas in light of section 790.33, Florida Statutes?”); “County repeals hunting, gun laws,” Tallahassee Democrat, pg. 1, June 15, 2011.

⁸ Section 790.15(1), F.S. also punishes as a first degree misdemeanor the knowing discharge of a firearm in any public place or on the right-of-way of any paved public road, highway, or street or over the right-of-way of any paved public road, highway, or street.

⁹ Ch. 2012-108, L.O.F. Note that the term “dwelling” is defined in accordance with s. 776.013, F.S., as a building or conveyance of any kind, including any attached porch, whether the building or conveyance is temporary or permanent, mobile or immobile, which has a roof over it, including a tent, and is designed to be occupied by people lodging therein at night.
