I. Summary:

SB 894 creates procedures to help state prisoners serve out sentences for violations of probation or community control while in prison for other crimes.¹ If a prisoner has an unserved warrant for arrest issued by another county for a violation of probation, the bill allows the prisoner to petition for a status hearing, where a state attorney informs the circuit court whether the prisoner does in fact have an unserved warrant for the violation.

If the prisoner has an unserved warrant, the bill provides that the court must order the state attorney to submit an order to send the prisoner to the issuing county's jail. The order must then be sent from the court to the local county sheriff to execute the prisoner's transport to the county that issued the probation warrant.

II. Present Situation:

Sometimes a prisoner's arrest or imprisonment in one county also violates his probation in another county. The Department of Corrections estimates that approximately 20 inmates are currently incarcerated with unserved probation warrants.²

It is difficult for prisoners in this situation to serve their time for violating probation concurrently with their existing sentences, because their probation warrants have not been served. A state prisoner has no right to force a hearing on a probation violation.³ Florida appellate courts have held that a probationer is only entitled to a hearing on a violation after he or she has been arrested and returned to the county alleging the violation.⁴

¹ "Probation" should be read to mean "probation and/or community control" for the remainder of this analysis, as the two mechanisms are treated the same by the caselaw, the existing Florida Statutes, and this bill.

⁴ Bonner v. State, 866 So. 2d 163, 164-65 (Fla. 5th D.C.A. 2004).

When a prisoner's arrest in one county violates his or her probation in another county, the latter county may file a detainer. A detainer instructs the holding county to either (a) hold the prisoner for the county filing the detainer, or (b) inform the county filing the detainer when the prisoner is about to be released.⁵

The Florida Supreme Court has ruled that a detainer generally does not result in accrual of time served for the probation violation because a detainer is not the same as an arrest warrant.⁶ As a result, a prisoner can leave prison in one county, then be arrested for violating his or her probation in another county.

The Second District Court of Appeal has ruled that a trial court has no duty to conduct hearings on warrants for probation violations, especially when the defendant is not imprisoned in the same county as the court.⁷

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

Probation

The bill creates new procedures to be used by a prisoner who has an unserved warrant for arrest due to a probation violation. Such a prisoner may file a notice of unserved warrant in the circuit court for the county that he or she claims issued the probation warrant.⁸ The prisoner must notify the state attorney in the county that issued the warrant, and the state attorney must then schedule a "status hearing" regarding the prisoner within 90 days. The status hearing is attended only by the state attorney and the judge; the prisoner may not be transported to the hearing.

During the hearing, the state attorney informs the judge whether the prisoner has an unserved warrant for a probation violation. If there is such a warrant, the judge must order the state attorney to submit a transport order for the prisoner within 30 days. The transport order concerns the transportation of the prisoner from the holding county to the county that issued the probation warrant; the order is to be carried out by the sheriff of the county that issued the warrant.

Effective Date

The bill is effective July 1, 2017.

IV. Constitutional Issues:

A. Municipality/County Mandates Restrictions:

This bill is not affected by the restrictions in the State Constitution which limit the Legislature's authority to impose mandates on counties and municipalities because the bill relates to criminal laws.

⁶ Gethers v. State, 838 So. 2d 504, 508 (Fla. 2003). The Court said time would only accrue in a situation where the holding county was only holding the probationer because of the detainer.

⁷ Norman v. State, 900 So. 2d 702, 703 (Fla. 2d D.C.A. 2005) (rejecting defendant's mandamus petition to compel a hearing).

⁸ Notably, the bill provides no means of informing prisoners whether they have violated their probations.

B. Public Records/Open Meetings Issues:

None.

C. Trust Funds Restrictions:

None.

D. Other Constitutional Issues:

There is no provision for the prisoner or his counsel to attend the status hearing. However, the bill does not close the hearing.

V. Fiscal Impact Statement:A. Tax/Fee Issues:

None.

B. Private Sector Impact:

The bill may get prisoners back into the workforce more efficiently. Many transitional programs are not open to prisoners with open warrants, so resolving the warrants may help these prisoners re-integrate into society.⁹

C. Government Sector Impact:

County and state transportation costs may rise due to the cost of transporting prisoners between counties. The status hearings will also marginally increase the workloads of state courts and state attorneys.

The bill compels courts and law enforcement agencies to act relatively quickly if a prisoner is aware that he or she has an outstanding warrant for a probation or community control violation. The Department of Corrections anticipates that forcing such action on prisoners' warrants will result in them being released from the criminal justice system more quickly, as more prisoners will begin serving concurrent sentences for probation violations.¹⁰

VI. Technical Deficiencies:

None.

VII. Related Issues:

None.
