I. Summary:

SB 504 amends s. 943.0585, F.S., to permit a person who has had a prior expunction granted for an offense that was committed when he or she was a minor to have another eligible record expunged. If the prior expunction was for an offense in which the minor was charged as an adult, the person is not eligible for a subsequent expunction. This bill also provides that the record is exempt from the 10 year sealing requirement.

Additionally, this bill removes language that provides a person is eligible for expunction if his or her indictment, information, or other charging document in the case giving rise to the criminal history record was dismissed by a court of competent jurisdiction.

This bill may have a negative indeterminate impact on the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) and the courts. See Section V. Fiscal Impact Statement.

This bill is effective July 1, 2023.

II. Present Situation:

There are multiple types of relief that may be sought in order to seal or expunge a criminal history record. The public will not have access to a criminal history record that has been sealed or expunged. Certain government or related entities have access to records even after they are sealed. Most of the entities who have access to sealed records also have access to see whether a person has had an expunction. However, those entities do not have access to the expunged criminal history record without a court order.¹

Sealing and Expunction of Criminal History Records

A criminal history record includes any non-judicial record maintained by a criminal justice agency² that contains criminal history information.³ Criminal history information is information collected by criminal justice agencies and consists of identifiable descriptions of individuals and notations of arrests, detentions, indictments, informations, other formal criminal charges, and criminal dispositions.⁴

Expunction of a Criminal History Record

A person may have his or her criminal history record expunged under certain circumstances.⁵ When a record is expunged, the criminal justice agencies possessing such record must physically destroy or obliterate it. The FDLE maintains a copy of the record to evaluate subsequent requests for sealing or expunction, and to recreate the record in the event a court vacates the order to expunge.⁶ The criminal history record retained by the FDLE is confidential and exempt.⁷ Once the record is expunged, a person may lawfully deny or fail to acknowledge the arrests covered by the expunged record, subject to exceptions.⁸

Certificate of Eligibility

Before petitioning a court to expunge a criminal history record, a person must apply to the FDLE for a certificate of eligibility for expunction. The FDLE must issue a certificate of eligibility for expunction to a person who is the subject of a criminal history record if that person:

- Is eligible for expunction, as described above;
- Has submitted to the FDLE a written certified statement from the appropriate state attorney or statewide prosecutor which confirms the criminal history record complies with specified criteria;⁹
- Has submitted to the FDLE a certified copy of the disposition of the charge to which the petition pertains; and
- Pays a $75 processing fee to the FDLE.¹⁰

² Section 943.045(11), F.S., provides that criminal justice agencies include a court, the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE), the Department of Juvenile Justice, components of the Department of Children and Families, other governmental agencies that administrate criminal justice, and the investigations component of the Department of Financial Services.

¹⁰ Section 943.0585(2)(a)1.-4., F.S.

A certificate of eligibility for expunction is valid for 12 months after the date stamped on the certificate when issued by the FDLE.¹¹

Court Ordered Expunction

A court, in its discretion, may order the expunction of a person's criminal history record if the FDLE issues the person a certificate of eligibility for expunction.¹² The FDLE must issue a certificate of eligibility for court-ordered expunction to a person meeting all criteria.¹³ Generally, a person is eligible for expunction if:

- An indictment, information, or other charging document was not filed or issued in the case giving rise to the criminal history record.
- An indictment, information, or other charging document was filed or issued in the case giving rise to the criminal history record, but was dismissed or nolle prosequi by the State, was dismissed by the court, a judgment of acquittal was rendered, or a verdict of not guilty was rendered.

Sealing of a Criminal History Record

When a criminal history record is sealed, it is preserved so that it is secure and inaccessible to any person who does not have a legal right to access the record or the information contained within the record.²³ A court may order a criminal history record sealed,²⁴ rendering it confidential and exempt from Florida's public records laws.²⁵ Only the following entities may access a sealed criminal history record:

- The subject of the record;
- His or her attorney;
- Criminal justice agencies for criminal justice purposes;
- Judges in the state courts system for assisting in their case-related decision-making responsibilities; and
- Certain enumerated entities²⁶ for licensing, access authorization, and employment purposes.²⁷

Certificate of Eligibility

To seal a record, a person must first apply to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) for a certificate of eligibility, which the FDLE must issue to a person who:

- Has submitted a certified copy of the charge disposition he or she seeks to seal;
- Is not seeking to seal a criminal history record relating to a violation of certain enumerated offenses;
- Has never, prior to filing the application for a certificate of eligibility, been either:

Court Ordered Sealing

Upon receiving a certificate of eligibility from the FDLE, a person must petition the court to seal the record.²⁹ A complete petition contains both a valid certificate of eligibility, issued within the previous 12 months, and a sworn statement from the petitioner attesting to his or her eligibility.³⁰ It is solely within the court's discretion to grant or deny a petition to seal.³¹

Upon sealing of a criminal history record, the subject of the record may lawfully deny or fail to acknowledge the arrests covered by the sealed record, with exceptions for certain state employment positions, professional licensing purposes, purchasing a firearm, applying for a concealed weapons permit, seeking expunction, or if the subject is a defendant in a criminal prosecution.³²

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill amends s. 943.0585, F.S., to permit a person who has had a prior expunction granted for an offense that was committed when he or she was a minor to have another eligible record expunged. If the prior expunction was for an offense in which the minor was charged as an adult, the person is not eligible for a subsequent expunction.
