I. Summary:

SB 258 prohibits a driver from operating a motor vehicle in the furthestmost left-hand lane on a road, street, or highway having two or more lanes allowing movement in the same direction with a posted speed limit of at least 65 miles per hour. A driver may drive in the furthestmost left-hand lane when overtaking and passing another vehicle, when preparing to exit the road, street, or highway, or when otherwise directed by an official traffic control device. This provision does not apply to authorized emergency vehicles and vehicles engaged in highway maintenance or construction operations.

A violation is a noncriminal traffic infraction punishable as a moving violation. The statutory base fine is $60, but with additional fees and charges, the total penalty may be up to $158.

The bill may have an indeterminate fiscal impact on state and local government.

The bill takes effect January 1, 2025.

II. Present Situation:

Under Florida law, a vehicle must be driven upon the right half of the roadway, except:

- When overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction under the rules governing such movement;
- When an obstruction exists making it necessary to drive to the left of the center of the highway, provided any person so doing yields the right-of-way to all vehicles traveling in the proper direction upon the unobstructed portion of the highway within such distance as to constitute an immediate hazard;

- Upon a roadway divided into three marked lanes for traffic under the rules applicable thereon; or
- Upon a roadway designated and signposted for one-way traffic.¹

Upon all roadways, any vehicle proceeding at less than the normal speed of traffic must be driven in the right-hand lane then available for traffic or as close as practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the roadway except when overtaking and passing another vehicle proceeding in the same direction or when preparing for a left turn.²

On a road, street, or highway having two or more lanes allowing movement in the same direction, a driver may not continue to operate a motor vehicle in the furthest left-hand lane if the driver knows or reasonably should know that he or she is being overtaken in that lane from the rear by a motor vehicle traveling at a higher rate of speed. This does not apply to drivers operating a vehicle that is overtaking another vehicle proceeding in the same direction, or is preparing for a left turn at an intersection.³

Upon any roadway having four or more lanes for moving traffic and providing for two-way movement of traffic, a vehicle may not be driven to the left of the centerline of the roadway, except when authorized by official traffic control devices designating certain lanes to the left side of the center of the roadway for use by traffic not otherwise permitted to use such lanes, or except as permitted to drive around an obstruction. However, this may not be construed as prohibiting the crossing of the centerline in making a left turn.⁴

A violation of the above laws is a noncriminal traffic infraction, punishable as a moving violation.⁵ The statutory base fine is $60,⁶ but with additional fees and surcharges, the total penalty may be up to $158.⁷

There are at least eight states where traveling in the left lane on certain roads, streets, and highways is prohibited except for turning and passing.⁸ Most states, like Florida, require slower traffic to keep right.⁹

III. Effect of Proposed Changes:

The bill amends s. 316.081, F.S., to prohibit a driver from operating a motor vehicle in the furthestmost left-hand lane on a road, street, or highway having two or more lanes allowing movement in the same direction with a posted speed limit of at least 65 miles per hour. The bill provides exceptions authorizing a driver to drive in the furthestmost left-hand lane when overtaking and passing another vehicle, when preparing to exit the road, street, or highway, or when otherwise directed by an official traffic control device. Additionally, this prohibition does not apply to authorized emergency vehicles and vehicles engaged in highway maintenance or construction operations.

For purposes of this provision, the term “furthestmost left-hand lane” excludes a high-occupancy-vehicle lane or a designated left turn lane. The furthestmost left-hand lane is considered the lane immediately to the right of such high-occupancy-vehicle lane or left turn lane in these instances.

A violation of this provision is a noncriminal traffic infraction punishable as a moving violation. The statutory base fine is $60, but with additional fees and charges, the total penalty may be up to $158.

The bill takes effect January 1, 2025.
