SUMMARY

Effect of the Bill:

CS/CS/HB 1451 revises the elements of the offense of sexual cyberharassment to remove the requirement from current law that an offender must have specified intent to commit a violation and to allow the publishing or dissemination of a sexually explicit image that does not contain the depicted person's personal identifying information (PII) to constitute a violation if the PII of the depicted person is contemporaneously published or disseminated in a specified manner. The bill creates an enhanced penalty, making a sexual cyberharassment offense punishable as a third-degree felony instead of a first-degree misdemeanor, if a person commits an act of sexual cyberharassment for the purpose of pecuniary gain.

The bill extends the statute of limitations for violations of sexual cyberharassment and authorizes a victim to recover punitive damages in a civil action against the offender. The bill includes sexual cyberharassment for pecuniary gain as a "felony sexual offense," a conviction of which precludes a person from having his or her voting rights restored without restoration of his or her civil rights.

Fiscal or Economic Impact:

The bill may have an indeterminate positive impact on jail and prison beds by creating a new felony offense for sexual cyberharassment, authorizing a prior withhold of adjudication to constitute a prior conviction for purposes of an enhanced felony charge, and altering the elements of sexual cyberharassment, which may result in more jail and prison admissions and offenders being sentenced to longer terms of incarceration. Additionally, the bill may have an indeterminate positive fiscal impact on any victim of sexual cyberharassment by authorizing such a person to recover punitive damages in a civil action against the offender.

- Revising the current requirement that the PII of the depicted person be conveyed in the image itself, and alternatively allowing the publication or dissemination of a sexually explicit image to constitute a violation of sexual cyberharassment if the depicted person's PII is published or disseminated contemporaneously with the sexually explicit image in such a manner that a person viewing the PII would reasonably know that such information directly relates to the person depicted in the sexually explicit image. RELEVANT INFORMATION

SUBJECT OVERVIEW:

Sexual Cyberharassment

Under Florida law, “sexual cyberharassment” means to publish to an Internet website or disseminate through electronic means to another person a sexually explicit image of a person that contains or conveys the personal identification information¹ of the depicted person without the depicted person’s consent, contrary to the depicted person’s reasonable expectation that the image would remain private, for no legitimate purpose, with the intent of causing substantial emotional distress to the depicted person.²

A person who willfully and maliciously sexually cyberharasses another person commits a first-degree misdemeanor,⁶ and a second or subsequent offense of sexual cyberharassment is a third-degree felony.⁷ In addition to criminal penalties, an aggrieved person may initiate a civil action to obtain injunctive relief, $10,000 in monetary damages or actual damages incurred, and reasonable attorney fees and costs.⁸

Promotion of Sexually Explicit Images for Pecuniary Gain

Section 836.14\(4\), F.S., prohibits a person from willfully promoting,⁹ through the use of print media, an Internet website, or other electronic means, for the purpose of pecuniary or any other financial gain, a sexually explicit image¹⁰ without consent of the identifiable person.¹¹ A violation of this prohibition is a second-degree felony.¹²

The statute of limitations (SOL) determines the timeframe in which a criminal prosecution must be initiated.¹³ The SOL in effect at the time a crime is committed controls.¹⁴ In general, time is calculated from the day after a person commits an offense, and the filing of a charging document such as an indictment or information initiates the prosecution for the purpose of satisfying the time limitations.¹⁵ Regardless of whether a charging document is filed, the time limitation does not run during any time an offender is continuously absent from the state or otherwise undiscoverable because he or she lacks a reasonably ascertainable home address or place of employment; however, an extension under this scenario may not exceed the normal time limitation by more than three years.¹⁶

Capital felonies,¹⁷ life felonies,¹⁸ and felonies resulting in a death are not subject to time constraints, and the state may bring charges at any time.¹⁹ The standard time limitations for other crimes are:²⁰

- Four years for a first-degree felony.
- Three years for a second or third-degree felony.
- Two years for a first-degree misdemeanor.
- One year for a second-degree misdemeanor.

Restoration of Voting Rights

Article VI, section 4 of the Florida Constitution prohibits a person who has been convicted of a felony or adjudicated mentally incompetent from qualifying to vote or hold office until his or her civil rights have been restored or his or her disability has been removed. Generally, such a disqualification from voting arising from a felony conviction will terminate and voting rights will be restored when a person completes all terms of his or her sentence, including parole or probation.²¹ However, a person who is convicted of murder or a felony sexual offense or who has not completed all terms of his or her sentence cannot have his or her voting rights restored until his or her civil rights have been restored.²²
