SUMMARY

Effect of the Bill:

The bill exempts a person who provides armed security services for a church or other ecclesiastical or denominational organization (church) from the licensing and regulatory requirements in ch. 493, F.S., for private security services, investigative, and recovery services if such person:

- Holds a valid license to carry a concealed weapon or concealed firearm;
- Provides such security services exclusively on the property owned or leased by a church; and
- Does not receive compensation for his or her services, excluding reimbursement for expenses related to training and equipment.

By expressly excluding specified persons who provide armed security services for a church from the requirement to be licensed by the Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services as a security officer, the bill clarifies that such persons are not unlawfully providing security services without a license, which could subject such persons to criminal and civil penalties.

Fiscal or Economic Impact:

None.

ANALYSIS

EFFECT OF THE BILL:

The bill specifies that the licensing requirements in ch. 493, F.S., for private security services, private investigative services, and repossession services, do not apply to any person who, on a voluntary basis, provides armed security services on the premises of a church or ecclesiastical or denominational organization having an established physical place of worship in Florida at which nonprofit religious services and activities are regularly conducted, if:

- The person holds a valid license to carry a concealed weapon or concealed firearm;
- Security services are provided exclusively on the premises of a church or ecclesiastical or denominational organization, including any property owned or leased by the church or ecclesiastical or denominational organization for worship, education, or religious activities; and
- The person providing the armed security services does not receive compensation for his or her services, which does not include reimbursement for reasonable expenses actually incurred and related to the cost of training or equipment necessary for providing such services. (Section 1)

By expressly excluding a person who meets the specified criteria from the licensing requirements in ch. 493, F.S., the bill authorizes such a person to provide armed security services in a church or similar organization without having to meet the licensing requirements that he or she would otherwise be required to comply with in order to provide such services, and also clarifies that a person who provides such services is not unlawfully providing security services without a license, which may subject a person to criminal prosecution and civil penalties.

The provisions in the bill do not affect a church or ecclesiastical or denominational organization's ability to employ an unlicensed security officer who does not carry a firearm to provide security at its established place of worship where nonprofit religious services and activities are regularly conducted, or on a church cemetery.

The effective date of the bill is July 1, 2026. (Section 2)

Carrying a Concealed Weapon or Concealed Firearm on Church Property

Generally, a person is not prohibited from carrying a weapon or firearm on the property of a church or other religious institution. A person who has a CWL is explicitly authorized to carry a concealed weapon or concealed firearm on property owned, rented, leased, borrowed, or lawfully used by a church, synagogue, or other religious institution, notwithstanding any other law, for the purposes of safety, security, personal protection, or any other lawful purpose.<sup>24</sup> However, this authorization does not limit the private property rights of a church, synagogue, or other religious institution to exercise control over property that the church, synagogue, or other religious institution owns, rents, leases, borrows, or lawfully uses.<sup>25</sup> As such, a church, synagogue, or other religious institution may prohibit a person from possessing a weapon or firearm on its property.
